It Takes a Village to Raise a Child...

This past weekend was a perfect example of how a community can interact with our youth to help them grow toward a healthier, happier and safer environment. Given the opportunity for our younger generation to work together not only helps them work toward higher goals, but equally important, was the example of 'unity in community' that was displayed by some the younger members of our own community. On the left, Abby Ruef 'proprietor' of this weekend's Abby's Lemonade Stand – held at Neversink General Stor e– is joined by her mom, Allison and sister, Elana, as well as their friend, Brianna Worden. On the right, a totally different venue – held on Friday afternoon in Grahamsville – a group of young people gathered with their parents to do some "Stream Peeking". Their stories are on page 8.

Charlie explained how the USA got into a war with Spain that neither the President, Congress, business leaders or Spain wanted and the role that Theodore Roosevelt played out before and during the war. Unlike the July 1, 1898 headlines of the NY Times, and the lesson we were taught in school, it was not Theodore Roosevelt and the Rough Riders, but the Buffalo Soldier Brigade, known then as the U.S. Colored Troops that charged and took San Juan Hill. August 5th and 6th, members of the Class of 1962 of Tri-Valley Central School gathered in Neversink and Grahamsville to renew old acquaintances and learn of the progress of the school district as well as the two communities.

On Monday, August 5th, the group enjoyed a luncheon at the Neversink General Store. For some, it had been 57 years since they saw each other, while for others, who remained in the area since their graduation, it provided an opportunity to "catch up" with each other and "reconnect" with those who had journeyed away from the area. While much has changed in the area since they graduated, the classmates, especially those who had moved away, remarked repeatedly on its abiding beauty and the joys they found living in the area and school years. AUGUST 15, 2019 A Round About Tri-Vallev

 Carol Furman It doesn't seem possible that in a few weeks, summer vacation will be over. School will be back in session! Already the high school sports teams have begun their practice sessions and many of our high school graduates will soon be off to college. Farmers will begin cutting their hay fields for the second or third time and those who burn wood, for warmth on colder days, have begun replenishing their wood piles. It seems that summer has just flown by! Enjoy the few weeks remaining before Labor Day, the official end of summer. I also look forward to the crisp clear days of September and October. Although the hours of daylight are getting shorter, these months are to be treasured for their beauty. If you are a seed collector, now is the time to begin collecting seeds for next spring's planting.

One night last week, while watching Jeopardy, my television began to scramble and soon I was looking at the provider's screen saver. I knew a thunder storm was on the way. So, I sat on the couch waiting for the storm to pass, hoping that I would be able to catch the end of my program. I began to think about long ago. What did people use to do with themselves before TV? When I was a very young child we didn't own a TV, however, each evening, when my father came home from working in the City, my mom, sister and I would have to go pick him up at the bus stop. We only had one car. I remember there was an appliance store on the corner near the bus stop. While we waited, my sister and I would stand and look through the store's big window and watch the TV. We couldn't hear the program, but we thought it was great that we could simply watch whatever was on. My family couldn't afford to own a TV at that time because they were quite expensive. Later, when I was 12 or 13, we did purchase a set, a Capehart. We had rabbit ears for reception and the number of channels we could get were limited and sometimes "fuzzy". I remember some of the neighborhood children, who did not have TV's, coming to our home in the late afternoon to watch some of our favorite shows. Shows like "Junior Frolics", "Howdy Doody", and "Mickey Mouse Club" were some we really enjoyed. Before TV kids played outside, spent time at the local the library, played cards or board games with family and friends, and listened to the radio. Yes, radio! One program we never missed was "The Lone Ranger"! Sometimes on a Sunday morning, after attending church, we listened to a radio program where a man read the comics from the Sunday paper to us. After lunch the whole family would get in the car and go for an afternoon ride. Sounds silly, doesn't it? The question comes to me: Why do we who have so much today take pleasure in remembering the past when sometimes we seemed to have so little? The answer, perhaps, is not too obscure. If life is simple and you don't have much, there is careful sorting of priorities. If life is simple, the simple things held on to must be of lasting value and only what is of true worth is cherished. Sometimes having a lot of material possessions complicates and clutters our lives. Many do not appreciate all that they have. There is no doubt that many of today's youth do not spend enough quality time with their families. Today, in their free time, many children and teens are busy playing computer games or using their cell phones or on the internet. Yes, indeed, times have certainly changed!

Words of Wisdom: I would appreciate receiving some local news for my column! Otherwise, I tend to ramble. I always give Linda one type-written page each week for the Townsman.

After 57 Years Spirit and Friendship Continues

The next day, Robert Whitaker, Tri-(From Pg. 1) Valley Central's Business Manager, generously shared his time and perspectives regarding the school with the "outof-towners" during a tour of the school's expansive facilities and grounds. So much had changed since they graduated, yet much brought back many fond memories. From the perspective of change, Craig Ross, Jim Lievre and Ira Rubenzahl especially marveled at the breadth of the facilities and more specifically, the magnificent Howard and Isabel Bernstein Auditorium.

Following this tour, the three were joined by Lorraine Petracelli, Lavern Black, Dale Ross, Craig's brother, and Diane Petrovak, Jim Lievre's sister, all members of the Class of 1960, on a visit to the Daniel Pierce Library and the Time and the Valleys Museum. While the museum was closed, Laverne Black shared highlights of the changes to the area and the lives of the residents that resulted from the building of the Rondout and Neversink Reservoirs. She also provided the group with a tour of the current "Water on the Waters" art exhibit at the library, which well displays the artistic talents of several local artists, one of which is Laverne Black.

A number of alums traveled considerable distances to attend: Jim Lievre, the longest from Austin Texas; Craig Ross from Richmond, Virginia; and Ira Rubenzahl from Hanford, Connecticut.

With the joy found in renewing friendships, members of the Class of 1962 are already planning another reunion next summer with the hope that many more of their former classmates will be able to attend.

The first game will be played by the rules in effect in 1864, and the second game will be played by rules from 1895. Dressed in period uniforms, the players will use period equipment with differences in ball size and in the 1864 game - no mitts! The base ball rules were quite different as well - such as the only balls landing in foul territory consider a strike were ones that were bunted. And yes, it was spelled "base ball" in two words, not "baseball"

"These are no ordinary ball games," states Collin Miller, captain of the MAC. "More than likely, the players and the style of play will resemble what your great, or great-great grandparents would've seen over one-hundred fifty years ago."

The games will begin with a first pitch at 12 noon. Immediately preceding each of the contests, a brief discussion will be given illustrating the prominent rule variations of the era being played. (Contd. Pg. 4)

Ah Chu! Golden Rod? No, Ragweed!

It is that time of the year when the bright yellow blossoms of the beautiful Goldenrod begin to carpet the landscape like a yellow rug. To most of us, it is a roadside weed not welcome in our gardens and considered an undesirable mental for a sunny border.

Goldenrod has had a bad reputation as the scourge of allergy sufferers. Actually, the troublesome pollen blowing about when Goldenrod is in bloom belongs to Ragweed.

Ragweeds are annual and perennial herbs and shrubs. Ragweeds have both male and female reproductive organs and produce a complete flowerhead that contain both staminate and pistillate flowers. Flowerheads are often in the form of a spike or cluster made up mostly of staminate flowers with some pistillate clusters around the base . The pistillate flowers are wind pollinated. Ragweed pollen is a common allergen. A single plant may produce about a billion grains of pollen per season and the pollen is transported on the wind. It causes about half of all cases of pollen-associated allergic rhinitis in North America!

On the other hand, Goldenrod pollen is moist and sticky For further information please contact Donna Steffens and is carried from flower to flower by insects.

Goldenrods prefer open fields but have adapted to marshes, mountains, deserts and sandy beaches. They owe their weedy reputation to their ruggedness and adaptability. They are opportunists, able to crop up where other plants cannot grow. After a forest fire, the appearance of goldenrod plants is often one of the first signs that the woods are coming back to life.

Below The Line Mysterious Book Report No. 384

by John Dwaine McKenna

If the unconventional and quirky kind of character is your cup of tea, this week's MBR No. 384 will put a smile on your face that couldn't be knocked off with a fire axe, because author Howard Michael Gould is about to release his second Charlie Waldo novel. Below The Line, (Dutton, $26.00, 304 pages, ISBN 978-1524744861) will hit bookstores on August 13, 2019, and feature the continuing adventures of the brilliant ex-LAPD detective and eco-wacko Charlie Waldo . . . the guy who's got himself so stirred up about climate change that he lives a minimalist existence based upon owning no more than one hundred objects at a time.

In this case, Charlie's slipped down from his shack up in the San Gabriel Mountain foothills to sleepover at his girlfriend's house. Her name is Lorena, and she's trying to get Charlie to become her business partner in order to cash in on his celebrity from the publicity he got after solving the apparently impossible murder of a movie and TV star's wife. Hoisted by his own petard, so-to-speak, Charlie agrees, and they're soon up to their necks with the case of Stevie Rose – the spoiled-brat privileged L.A. teenager who claims that one of her high-school teachers seduced and had sexual relations with her. When the teacher turns up dead and Stevie, who lies constantly, continuously and ceaselessly, disappears, the LAPD wants to pin the murder on her. Her parents, a Hollywood power couple, beg Lorena and Waldo to find Stevie and exonerate her, plunging Waldo deep into the seamy underbelly of Orange County, where the opulent and the seedy live side-by-side, treachery abounds at every turn . . . and nothing is as it seems. All while Charlie struggles to keep his self-ordained lifestyle and his complicated love life intact.

If you crave relief from all of the snarling, hucksterism, pomposity, lying, cheating, sniffing, scratching and sneering that passes for public discourse these days, read this novel. Mr. Gould's precise and expert skewering of Hollywood's elite, their outrageous incomes, lifestyles and attitudes, as well as their obnoxious, solipsistic and demanding hectoring of we, the deplorable ones to conform to a lifestyle they themselves wouldn't even dream of . . . is spot on. It'll leave you laughing until you get the hiccups!

Not Your Grandfather's Game Museum to Host Nineteenth Century Base Ball Games

(From Pg. 3) Admission is free and souvenirs and refreshments will be available for purchase at the concessions stand. Spectators are encouraged to arrive in period-appropriate nineteenth-century attire if they are so inclined. About the Teams and the Style of Play

First Game: The first game will be played by the rules and customs of base ball in 1864 (that's right, it was spelled with two words back then). Some rules of the modern game can be traced back to rules established in 1864, such as ninety-feet between bases and nine inning games (agreed upon by both teams prior to the start of the game). But that is where resemblance to the modern game stops. Fielders do not wear gloves, at all; gloves would not come around until the 1880's. The base balls are also stitched differently - often called a "lemon peel" - and made slightly larger than the modern "horseshoe" ball. And a batted ball caught on a "bound" or one bounce is an out. Of particular interest is that pitches are tossed underhand from a pitcher's box 45 feet from home plate - a round metal dish ten inches in diameter. Furthermore, umpires will not call a ball or strike on the batter until they issue a warning: either to a pitcher for not serving up a hittable pitch, or to the batter for being too choosy with what to swing at.

ter for being too choosy with what to swing at. The Brooklyn Atlantics have been playing this style of base ball at Atlantic Field on the grounds of the Smithtown Historical Society in Smithtown, NY since 1997. But the team itself dates back to 1855. In fact, the Atlantics were recognized as National Champions back in 1864 and 1865, having gone undefeated both seasons.

Second Game: The second game of the showcase will be played according to the rules and customs of 1895 - the year that brothers Julius and Max Fleischmann built their very own Field of Dreams near their family's sprawling Catskills estate in the sleepy town of Griffins Corners, NY. It was on these grounds that the baseball-loving duo would spend some of their yeast-making fortune to establish the Mountain Athletic Club and furnish it with a crop of talent that gave professional teams of the day a run for their money.

"Baseball in '95 had subtle differences to the modern game. For example," states Miller, "the only balls landing in foul territory that are considered a strike on the batter are those that were bunted; they were referred to as a "foul strike". The gloves were quite different as well."

Long before the notion of spring training in a warmer climate became en vogue, Fleischmanns Athletic Grounds served as a training facility for pro ball. The early years of the MAC produced four players on the 1906 World Series Champion Chicago White Sox, dubbed the "Hitless Wonders". In fact, nearly a dozen or more MAC players would go on to have solid careers in the major leagues including Johannes "Honus" Wagner - considered to be among the best shortstops in baseball history and a firstballot Hall of Famer in 1936 and Miller Huggins, also a Hall of Famer who managed the famous "Murderer's Row" of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in the 1920's. Huggins was just a "babe" of his own when he played for the MAC. In 1903, he appeared under the pseudonym "Proctor" out of fear he might lose his NCAA scholarship for his participation in a semi-professional game versus the Cuban Giants - an all-black club that featured the last African-American to appear in an integrated professional base ball league until Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier.

In 1902, the Fleischmann brothers purchased principal ownership of the Cincinnati Reds and Julius would later go on to serve two terms as Mayor of Cincinnati...all the while coming back to play or watch a ball game at his M.A.C. Grounds until his family's exodus from the Catskills in 1913. Following the family's departure, on May 11, 1914, Julius donated the M.A.C. Grounds to the newly incorporated Village of Fleischmanns - a name it holds to this day. This year marks the 150th anniversary of the Fleischmann's Yeast Company and next year, the Village plans to commemorate 125 years of base ball at "the Athletic Grounds" with a listing on the National Registry of Historic Places.

My Tricycle

"Bicycling is a big part of the future. It has to be. There's something wrong with a society that drives a car to workout in a gym." Bill Nye, the Science Guy

I stopped at a garage sale in Northville to look at a boat for sale. The seller had a fleet (five) of brand-new tricycles, mostly Schwinn and one Mantis. When I brought my husband back to look at the boat, which he did not buy, I remarked how I always wanted a three-wheeled bike with a big basket behind the seat. "Buy it," my husband said, and I did.

As I took it for a short ride to check it out, I thought back to the last time I had ridden a bike. Once was about six years ago at

As I took it for a short fide to check it out, I mought back to the fast time I had fidden a bloc. Once was about six years ago at my cousin's house in Mexico Beach where golf carts and bikes own the streets and about thirty years before that on Cape Cod. No, problem, the old saying goes, "It's like riding a bicycle, you never forget." However, my previous bikes did not have six gears and hand brakes. The only thing my new trike and my old bike had in common was the bell and basket. I began to think about my relationships with bikes which probably ended abruptly when I got my driving permit at sixteen. I think Santa must have bought me my first bike with training wheels. I cannot remember what kind or what color, but I do remember the feeling of taking off, without training wheels or a parent to steady me, giddy with the feeling of independence and freedom. A bike in Long Island meant you could go anywhere with a network of sidewalks and street lights. in Long Island meant you could go anywhere with a network of sidewalks and street lights. Think about it..a bike is the one vehicle where the person is both motor and passenger. In that long lapse between bikes, my motor" is a big sluggish and the passenger is a whole lot more cautious. I selected the Mantis brand of trike, and I joke that I am "PRAYING" not to fall off my MANTIS.

This fall, Ulster County is opening the rail trail along the stretch of the Ashokan Reservoir. I am gearing up to ride its scenic path along the Esopus Creek. I will pack water and chips and my cell phone just in case my aging motor fails to get me there and back on my "Praying Mantis."

Human Rights Commission Statement on Recent Racism and Anti-Semitism

Monticello, NY - In light of recent and ongoing anti-Semitic incidents in Sullivan County, and racially motivated violence throughout the country, the Sullivan County Human Rights Commission would like to remind both residents and visitors: hate has no home here and will not be tolerated within our community.

If the Commission becomes aware of violations that fall within our jurisdiction, we will report and act on them in accordance with New York State's Human Rights Law. We also call upon people throughout the County to speak up if you hear or witness any acts of harassment, violence, or discrimination. We cannot let hate flourish amongst us, whether it is a remark made in passing, or a comment we read online; now is the time to call out this behavior before it grows and spreads.

Sullivan County is strong and unique because of its diversity. Your neighbors might not look like you, they might support different politicians than you do, they may worship differently than you, they might be undocumented, or speak a different language, but we are all part of the same community. A smile goes a long way, and kindness doesn't cost a thing. This is not a political issue; it is an issue of safety, compassion, and understanding. Take a stand with us in condemning hate speech, verbal harassment, and violence while uplifting diversity and inclusion within Sullivan County.

If you, or anyone you know has been subject to discrimination in any form, please contact the Sullivan County Human Rights Commission at (845)-807-0189.

Proposed Monticello-Broadway Historic District Moves Forward

Monticello, NY - Monticello's downtown Broadway core may soon become a National Register Historic District.

A historic assessment of the area, sponsored by Sullivan Renaissance, was completed earlier this year and resulted in the creation of a formal nomination to the National Register. The Village of Monticello and Sullivan County Division of Planning have been working with the New York State Historic Preservation Office (NYSHPO) to nominate the district for inclusion and to coordinate outreach and education on what the listing means. This is one of many efforts in which the Division of Planning and Village have been partnering to revitalize Broadway.

"Monticello has a treasure trove of beautiful mixed-use buildings that are worthy of National Historic District designation," noted District 9 Legislator Alan Sorensen, chair of the Legislature's Planning Committee. "We need to protect these resources for future generations."

"Including Monticello in the National Register will help preserve the remarkable history of our County Seat and enable us to obtain grants to enhance the downtown area," agreed District 8 Legislator Ira Steingart, who, with Sorensen, represents the village.

The National Register of Historic Places was established in 1966 by the National Historic Preservation Act, which declared that "the historical and cultural foundations of the Nation should be preserved as a living part of our community life and development." The National Register was to be composed of districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects significant in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture." Downtown Monticello is to be nominated as a district due to its concentration and continuity of historic early 20th century buildings on and around the core of Broadway. Similar National Register historic districts in Sullivan County include downtown Liberty and the hamlet of Callicoon.

Inclusion in a federally-designated historic district will make improvements to properties eligible for various grant opportunities and tax incentives. Because of this, the historic district can be an important tool for downtown revitalization.

AUGUST 15, 2019

The Scene Too By Jane Harrison

So here we are on the eve of the 50th anniversary of the legendary gathering that put Sullivan County back on the radar. This time it wasn't a performance by Jerry Lewis or Tony Bennett at one of the top hotels of the Borscht Belt but an estimated 400,000 plus people coming together in a field for a weekend of Peace and Love with a bunch of music thrown in. Or as I heard it described – just recently as a matter of fact-"a bunch of d^{} ed dirty hippies". Wow, things don't change much.

I know many people who were at the original event. I even know one who helped make it a free concert...he can be seen clearly on the film shown at Bethel's Museum. You cannot visit JUST the museum during this weekend's event. Not without a pass to the entire event. And if you have a ticket and a pass for this weekend, you can leave to say, drive around the area BUT, it is rumored, you will NOT be able to reenter without paying...again. This came from someone working security. So breakfast at Tilly's Diner or a drink at Hector's are out. These two businesses featured prominently in 1969.

I know many people who are performing this coming weekend. Many local talents and many "stars" not deemed big enough to bring in the big money the venue wants are performing on the lesser stages. I know this because they have told me. And I feel it's a crying shame that I have YET to find their names anywhere on the Bethel Woods press releases or websites/facebook pages. Even Michael Lang's ill fated WOODSTOCK 50 had every name of every performer on his promo material, as all festivals do. It included Santana and John Fogerty. That just could not happen, now could it.

I know someone who worked on both the attempted recreations of Woodstock in 1994 and 1999. Neither would be successful the way the promoters wanted. The crowd size in 1994 was estimated at 550,000 and in 1999 around 400,000, so the numbers were the same. The major difference was that PEOPLE had changed.

I know many people who were at the original event...many who have been trekking to the monument religiously. Not one of them is attending this year. Some say this event doesn't have the right feel. Some site the recent gun violence. Some site the recent violence and the divisive climate period.

WOODSTOCK 1969 was all about Peace and Love and was attended by those who believed. The massive concert was a bonus. There were no fights. There was no overt racism. Woodstock 1969 was a lifestyle adapted by the 400,000 that attended and by persons like myself who was too young to hitch hike to New York from the Midwest. And if that makes me one of those "ded dirty hippies", then so be it. Be so kind as to look up Mark 22 verse 39 and live it. Peace.

Vikki Siciliano, local Fresh Air Fund representative for the Sullivan County area, will be organizing a swim party for Fresh Air children and their host families on August 20. New York State Hunting and Trapping Education Courses Now Available Training Required before Purchasing a Hunting License

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Commissioner Basil Seggos today reminded all new hunters and trappers that registration for required hunter education classes is now open. Courses fill quickly and interested hunters and trappers are encouraged to register early. Each year, more than 45,000 New Yorkers take DEC's hunter and trapper education courses.

HOT DOG LUNCHEON YARD and CLOTHING SALE Fridays at 3:00 pm Comics, Vintage items, books, clothing, yard sale items, children's clothing, toys... something for everyone!

Doors open 6 pm drawing 7:30.

Commissioner Seggos said, "Hunting in New York is a proud tradition that helps us manage our state's incredible natural resources. Before getting their license and going afield, all new hunters and trappers must complete a hunter, bowhunter, or trapper education course. I encourage all prospective hunters and trappers to sign up for one of the hundreds of courses offered across New York over the next several months by our dedicated volunteer instructors. We're proud of our hunting safety record in New York, in part because of DEC's Hunter Education Program, which teaches the principles of safe, ethical hunting."

DEC works closely with thousands of dedicated, DEC-certified instructors statewide to provide these training courses free of charge. Courses are offered for Hunter Education, Bowhunter Education, Trapper Education, and Waterfowl Hunter Education.

DEC's online registration system makes it easy to view a list of available courses. Students can register from any device-smartphone, tablet, or computer-24 hours a day, seven days a week. Courses are added continuously throughout the year, so those interested should regularly check the online system to find a course near them. To locate a hunter or trapper education course, visit DEC's website or contact a local DEC office for assistance.

Students must complete homework prior to attending the required classroom and field course. The homework portion of the course provides an introduction to the subject and enhances students' understanding of the course material. Proof of the completed homework is required to attend the course. Students should register for the course well in advance of the course date to allow time to complete the homework requirement, which can take several hours.

Access to the homework materials and online homework options can be found on DEC's website or you can follow the guidelines listed in the course announcement when you register for a course. Course manuals and homework sheets are always available from DEC wildlife offices and Hunter Education Program instructors.

Travel Pass FAOs

I'm a Bethel Wood Member/Box Holder and I already have a season long parking pass. Do I still need to register for a travel pass?

Yes. All ticketed guests, including Bethel Woods Members and Season Boxholders are required to register for a Travel Pass. Please ensure that you display both so that you may enter the roadways into the venue and get directed to the appropriate parking area.

What happens if I do not know my login information to register for a travel pass?

If you do not know your Ticketmaster login information, click "Forgot Password?" on the Ticketmaster login page and proceed through the steps to reset your password. If you are unable to reset your password, you will have contact Ticketmaster customer service (1-800-653-8000) and create a new account.

I already purchased a premium parking pass. Do I still need to register for a travel pass?

Yes. All ticketed guests, including those with Premium Parking are required to register for a Travel Pass. Please ensure that you display both so that you may enter the roadways into the venue and get directed to the appropriate parking area.

I purchased six tickets but we can't all fit in one car. What do I_do?

Orders of 5 or more tickets are automatically validated for one additional Travel Pass through your password during the registration process. If you have an order of 5 or more tickets and encounter any issues obtaining your second Travel Pass, please email: travelpass@bethelwoodscenter.org

I only purchased four tickets but my party is coming from two different directions. Can we obtain a second travel pass?

To request an additional Travel Pass, please email travelpass@bethelwoodscenter.org explaining the reason for your request, at which time, it will be reviewed by a member of our staff.

I bought a ticket from someone, but they never sent me a travel pass, what should I do?

Please attempt to reach the original purchaser of the ticket. The link to their Travel Pass should be in their email. For further help, please email travelpass@bethelwoodscenter.org.

Do I have to register for multiple travel passes if I'm attending all the concerts?

Yes. Travel Passes are unique to each day of Anniversary weekend (Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday). You will receive a separate email for each event you have purchased tickets for. Therefore, you are required to register for a Travel Pass for each of the date(s) of your corresponding ticket(s). For example, if you are attending Film on the Field on Thursday and the Santana concert on Saturday, you need to register for a Thursday Travel Pass and a Saturday Travel Pass.

Is there a limit on how many travel passes I can get? Yes. Only 1 Travel Pass will be issued per order. Orders of 5 or more tickets can register for one additional Travel Pass, which will be automatically validated by your password.

Do I have to know what car I'm taking to register for the travel pass?

No, the Travel Passes are transferrable by car but will be barcoded and linked to your ticket purchase.

Do I have to print the travel pass out or will it be mailed to me? Once you have registered for a Travel Pass, the pass will be mailed to the address you included during the registration process. To update your address on file, please email travelpass@bethelwoodscenter.org or call Ticketmaster Customer Service at 1-800-653 8000.

Can I download the travel pass electronically?

No. Once you have registered for a Travel Pass, the pass will be mailed to the address you included during the registration process.

I forgot my pass, what should I do?

In the event that you arrive to the security checkpoints with-out a Travel Pass, your vehicle will be delayed and rerouted by law enforcement to a Satellite Checkpoint on Pucky Huddle Road. We will invalidate your existing pass, evaluate your claim and if needed provide you with a new pass for a $20 reprint fee.

Do I have to print out the tickets to prove that everyone in the car has one?

All visitors within the vehicle must have an individual, unique ticket, which can be either a mobile or printed ticket. Mobile tickets must be accessed through the Ticketmaster App and must be able to be scanned. Screenshots, photos or printouts of mobile tickets will not be accepted.

Will this take a long time and make the line go slow?

We are taking the necessary precautions and implementing procedures in order to ensure that our visitors have the best experience possible, both within the venue and in the surrounding area and community. As a result, traveling to and from the venue is expected to take longer than usual. In effort to reduce travel and wait times, we ask that visitors plan ahead and follow the policies and procedures being implemented, both in advance of and during the event dates. Plan to arrive early and enjoy the pre-event festivities. And don't forget to be patient and stay positive!

I can't print out my tickets, how do I prove that I have one?

You can obtain the mobile version of your ticket by downloading the Ticketmaster app and logging into your account.

My concert tickets are on my mobile phone. Is that sufficient that I have proof of concert tickets?

Yes, valid tickets that can be scanned are sufficient. Please ensure you use the Ticketmaster App, passbook, or similar, to ensure you can access your tickets without service or interruption.

I resold tickets via Ticketmaster and do not have the contact info for those I sold them to, am I still responsible for sending them a travel pass?

Yes. As the original purchaser of the tickets, you are responsible for issuing the Travel Pass registration information to your transferred ticket buyers.

How long do I have to apply for my Travel Pass?

Please apply for your Travel Pass as soon as possible to ensure that we can get it mailed to you. If you miss the cutoff date for mailing you will have to stop at the Satellite Checkpoint at Pucky Huddle Road to have your tickets validated and to receive your parking pass.

My password is not working. What do I do?

Please contact Ticketmaster Customer Service at 1-800-653-8000.

When will I receive my Travel Pass?

Depending on your location you should expect to receive your Travel Pass 3 to 4 days prior to the event you registered for.

I am picking up my tickets the day of the event as will call, what should I do about my Travel Pass?

Please still register for your Travel Pass using the email and code you are sent as a ticket buyer. Details about will call and ticket pickup will be communicated via email.

I purchased tickets for one Anniversary Weekend day but want to visit the Museum on a different Anniversary Weekend day. Will I be able to do so? No. The Museum is only open to ticketholders on the date of their valid concert ticket. The Museum at Bethel Woods will offer extended hours the weekend before Anniversary Weekend (August 10th-14th) from 9AM-9PM as well as the weekend following (August 19th-25th).

I am taking a shuttle bus to the venue, do I still need a travel pass?

No. Thank you for using a shuttle service. We are working closely with our bussing partners and local hotels to ensure they have the proper verification needed to enter the site.

I am traveling and will not be able to receive my travel passes via the mail, what should I do?

Please know we are working hard to mail the travel passes to the address provided at checkout ASAP.

Our target mailing date was August 5th. If you were traveling before that date and will be unable to receive your pass via the mail, you will be able to pick up your passes at a satellite station located at Pucky Huddle road. A parking attendant will direct you to the location where you will be able to receive your pass. I purchased tickets over the phone and/or through a third-party which will be available for pick up at will call. How will I gain access to the site if I do not have a travel pass and any tickets to show as proof of purchase?

First, individuals without a travel pass should email travelpass@bethelwoodscenter.org requesting one be mailed to a given address. If a party does not have a travel pass, they will be directed to a satellite location on Pucky Huddle road where they will be given one. In the case they do not have tangible tickets, a confirmation email with ticket numbers will suffice.
