A Round About Tri-Valley

Carol Furman

Irene Gorman, wife of former Town of Neversink Supervisor, James Gorman, passed away on December 20th at the age of 93. Irene, who was particularly proud of her Coast Guard service during the second world war was always willing to serve her community. Condolences to her family and friends.

Amy Garber of Hurleyville passed away on December 20th at the age of 94. Amy was an active member of the Tri-Valley community and enjoyed spending her winters in Florida. Sympathy to her family and many friends.

Congratulations to Adam and Jacquelynn Greenspan of Neversink on the birth of a son, Brandon Marc, on December 9th. Prayers should go out for Mike Mickelson who is in the hospital.

Once upon a time there were two little Russian girls who had been abandon by their parents and were sent to the Porkhov Correctional Orphanage Due to financial limitations, the orphanage was unable to provide many things we take for granted. The shower facilities and a rundown playground were inadequate. Irina and her sister, Katya, had little clothing and often had very little to eat. While living in the orphanage, the two young sisters were introduced to Christianity through visiting missionaries. One day, just before Christmas, the orphans received "shoeboxes" from Operation Christmas Child. The children were thrilled with the many little gifts they had received in the boxes. It was more than they would receive all year, to make a long story short, Irina and Katya were eventually adopted by an American family from South Carolina. Irina eventually met and married Steven Creek, a Tri-Valley graduate, but she never forgot the orphanage. Irina decided she wanted to raise money to help the orphans at the Porkhov Orphanage. She raised enough money to help the Orphanage make many needed improvements. On Sunday, January 1st, Irina and Steven were at the Grahamsville Methodist Church where they showed a slide presentation of the Orphanage before and after the improvements were made. Irina's mission to help the orphans by providing shower facilities and replacing the run-down playground was a mission of love. In addition, she saw that each child received a Bible and a needed clothing item. What a wonderful story! As I said in a previous article, it is important to note that Franklin "Operation Christmas Child Shoeboxes" actually do help children in other parts of the world by introducing them to faith and prayer and letting them know that others do care about them.

Words of Wisdom: Birds take different positions to feed, like upside down and of course, right side up. Lesson: There is more than one way to get something done, so be flexible. Look at all of your options before choosing which way to go and don't judge others way of doing things. (Janice Shenk }

The Little Snowbirds

A poet described a little junco, "Dark winter skies above and white snow below." With their outer tail feathers also white, the air becomes alive with the contrasting white streaks against their dark feathers as the birds bounce and dart from one bush to another.

Adults generally have gray heads, necks, and breasts, gray or brown backs and wings, and a white belly. The white outer tail feathers flash distinctively in flight and while hopping on the ground. The bill is usually pale pinkish.

Males tend to have darker, more conspicuous markings than the females. The dark-eyed junco is 5 to 6.9 in long and has a wingspan of 7.1 to 9.8 in and weighs from 0.63 to 1.06 oz. Juveniles often have pale streaks and may even be mistaken for vesper sparrows until they acquire adult plumage at 2 to 3 months. In the Catskills you may never get the chance to see the youngsters, as most young are hatched far away in the wilds of Canada or Alaska during the summer months.

During courtship the juncos will hop about with their wings drooped and their tails fanned, displaying the outer white feathers. The male sings softly from a branch to woo his lady love. The female builds her nest in a shallow depression, with foliage as protection. She will lay 2 clutches of 3-6 eggs and will incubate the eggs. Nestlings are fed regurgitated insects by both parents. The nestlings grow quickly and they are able to leave the nest a few days before they can fly.

Juncos (Junco hyemalis) are of the sparrow species and members of the finch family, Fringillidae.

Since the first frosty days in September, little families of Juncos came down out of the north. They traveled from one weed patch to another, eating weed seeds.

Many folks think of juncos as their "snowbirds." There is a good reason for this - now with all the snow and winter weather, they show up in our backyards. Juncos are primarily ground feeders, and enjoy the millet found in mixed bird seed, sunflower hearts and cracked corn spread on the ground or in a platform feeder.

Watch them up close and see their tiny pink beaks crushing the seeds in true Sparrow style. The birds roll them over and over in their beaks until the shells are Then they enjoy the tasty soft enough to crack.

morsels inside the shells.

When flocks of Dark-Eyed Juncos join together for the winter, they use their social rank for protection. The dominate birds stay in the center of the flock of 10 to 30 birds where they are protected from predators. First are the oldest males, surrounded by the young males, then the oldest females, and finally the young females! They keep their place in the flock by using displays of dominance which includes aggressive lunges, and by flashing their white tail feathers.

These lively snowbirds have their own ways of keeping warm during the chilly winter. They sleep in dense evergreen trees or burrow their way into a haystack. Then all night long they perch first on one foot and then on the other, so that four little toes are always tucked under downy feathers. It would be hard to hop on frost-bitten toes!

Morning finds them back at the bird feeders, or flitting along the ground looking for feed that has fallen. They enjoy long cool drinks of melted snow. You may see them where the snow is dry, taking flutter baths, raising little clouds of powdery snow. After their baths, the cold wind ruffles their feathers and gives them a good dry cleaning.

In early spring, before the flocks leave for their northern nesting grounds, they sing soft trills, entirely different from their low winter twittering. These trills are little samples of spring music for us to enjoy until the Orioles, Wrens, and Thrushes arrive from the south to give us the full measure of Spring's song.

Household Hints

Remove Bumper Stickers

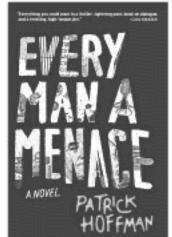

If those old bumper stickers on your car are more tattered than nostalgic, it's time to break out the vinegar. Saturate the top and sides of the sticker with undiluted distilled vinegar and wait 10-15 minutes for the vinegar to soak through. Then use an expired credit card (or one of those promotional plastic cards that come in the mail) to scrape it off. Use more full-strength vinegar to get rid of any remaining gluey residue.

Every Man A Menace

Special Mysterious Book Report No. 269 by John Dwaine McKenna

Hello, and welcome to the 2017 edition of the Mysterious Book Report, where we're dedicated to the proposition that You must read . . . or surrender yourself to ignorance, which makes just as much sense today as it did 2,500 years ago when a Chinese philosopher named Kong Zi said it. The world knows him as Confucius, and his teachings are as cogent now as they were then – perhaps even more so in this day and age of the ten-second soundbite and three-second attention span. The MBR is here to encourage, promote and stimulate the reading habit in everyone. We do it by reading and reporting on the best new mysteries, thrillers and crime fiction being written today, with an emphasis on all of the exciting, up-and-coming new talent producing work that's comparable, or even superior, to the legends and the best writers of the past. Take this week's composition for example.

Every Man a Menace, (Grove Atlantic Press, $25.00, 278 pages, ISBN 978-0-8021-2544-6) by Patrick Hoffman is his second published novel and the follow-up to last year's best-selling debut, The White Van. It's getting rave reviews for it's tight plotting, realistic characters and compelling dialogue, as well as it's spot-on examination of the global operations of today's large-scale drug wholesalers.

As the novel begins, a newly released convict named Raymond Gaspar is sent to San Francisco by the gang-lord who ran the crew that protected him in prison, to check on the massive shipment of MDMA-also known as Molly, or Ecstasy-that's about to be brought into the city from Thailand. The boss, still in prison, wants Raymond to keep tabs on Gloria, the Filipino woman who's brokering the sale, and the increasingly erratic, crazed dealer named Shadrack. He's the guy who runs around with a gym bag stuffed full of precious gems; diamonds, rubies and emeralds, because he's afraid of banks. He's also the guy who's supposed to pony up with several million in cash to pay everyone off – from Bangkok to Miami to San Francisco – and keep the good times rolling. But nothing ever seems to go as planned in the criminal underworld, and a phone call from Asia sets a chain of events in motion that will end in blood and death for some, fabulous wealth, if they can pull it off, for others while the end-users party on, oblivious to the trail of pain, betrayal and bloodshed behind their latest good time. Proving he's no fluke with a one-hit wonder, Patrick Hoffman has written an electrifying novel that plunks the reader down, smack-dab in the middle of the transglobal drug scene. It's a truly frightening peek into what's going on all around us – no matter where we live. Every Man A Menace is one of the most outstanding sophomore novels to come across my radar screen in a very long time. With it's propulsive pacing, diabolic plot and relentless action, it'll keep all crime fiction lovers arc welded to the page. Don't plan on getting much done after you start reading, but once you finish, its gonna seem like forever until Hoffman's next one is published. Personally, I can't wait!

Like the review - let your friends know, You saw it in the Mysterious Book Report - The greatest compliment you can give is to like us and share it with others on Facebook, and follow us on Goodreads, Pinterest or LinkedIn.

SC Chamber Orchestra Presents Baroque to the Future (From Pg. 1)

The pieces to be performed include: T. Albinoni - Sinfonia in G Major, J.S. Bach -Brandenburg Concerto No. 5, H. Górecki -Harpsichord Concerto and Britten - Simple Symphony. The first performance is Saturday, January 28, 2017, at 7pm at the Eugene D. Nesin Theatre for the Performing Arts, 22 St. John Street, Monticello, NY. The second performance is the following day, Sunday, January 29, 2017 at 3pm at St. James Episcopal Church, 7 Mountain View Drive, Callicoon, NY. Tickets are $18 for adults and $15 for seniors. Students with an ID are free. They may be purchased online or door. Visit www.nesinculturalarts.org.

The featured soloists, Kenneth Hamrick (harpsichord) and Judith Pearce (flute), were invited by Orchestra Director Andrew Trombley to celebrate a 20 year collaboration. Pearce (solo flute), Ann Trombley (piano) and Nancy Wegrzyn (viola) and others are celebrating their 20 year collaboration in educating youth. Pearce, who established Weekend of Chamber Music, started her collaboration in Sullivan County with the Monticello Schools in 1997. She has worked closely with faculty members Ann Trombley and Wegrzyn, beginning a Visiting Artist Residency. Kenneth Hamrick (solo harpsichord) was introduced to NCA by Pearce. Andrew Trombley (bass) who was mentored by Pearce was a student. Wegrzyn was his first bass teacher. Coming full circle, Andrew will perform with his mentors in the SCCO January Concert. Also performing will be Akiko Hosoi (solo violin). Pearce said, "We've already had a rehearsal of Bach's 5th Brandenburg Concerto for the January concerts and it was everything that chamber music can be. We explored this marvelous piece and I know that the January performances will be an exuberant celebration of these 20 years."

As part of the SCCO's dedication to education, the Select Students in the NCA Children's Choirs and the Aspiring Young Musicians programs will be joining the orchestra for one short piece. The students will participate in workshops by visiting artist Kenneth Hamrick on the history, style and culture of baroque music.

This project is funded in part by a grant from the Sullivan County Plans and Progress Small Grants Program, administered by the Division of Planning and Environmental Management. The Visiting Artist program is supported in part by public funds from the New York State Council on the Arts with the support of Governor Andrew Cuomo and the New York State Legislature.

CWC Board Approves Additional Septic Reimbursement for 2016

MARGARETVILLE, January 5, 2017: Homeowners in the New York City Catskill-Delaware Watershed who repaired or replaced their septic system in the past year but, because of distance from a watercourse, were not eligible for funding through the Catskill Watershed Corporation (CWC) at the time, may now apply for reimbursement.

Because there were unexpended septic program funds at the end of the year, the CWC Board of Directors voted January 3 to accept reimbursement applications for septic rehabilitation completed through December 31, 2016 regardless of whether or not those systems are located in an existing

A STORY THAT HAS IT ALL . . . A CRIME YOU CAN'T FORGIVE A PLOT YOU COULDN'T IMAGINE AND A CHARACTER . . . YOU'LL NEVER FORGET.

There's no sanitary way to write about murder. In "Whim-Wham Man," John Dwaine McKenna takes it to an anguished, personal level in his gut-punching novel of a teen-aged boy whose idyllic life in a rural community comes crashing down when reality and adulthood rush in after a brutal crime. It's a helluva yarn.

- Dick Kreck, author of Murder at the Brown Palace and Smaldone.

The Olive Jar Universal Resolutions

Forty-one percent of people make resolutions at New Year's. However, only 9.2 percent actually keep them according to the Statistic Brain site on Google. Most resolutions involve self-improvement with weight loss ranking first. I no longer make personal resolutions because I loathe the guilt I feel with failure. Instead, i would like to offer these dozen suggestions for all of us to try to follow in 2017:

Do not wear a hat indoors.

Do not talk with food in your mouth.

Give one thing away. Someone needs it more than you.

Offer a compliment and a smile to make someone's day brighter.

Say "thank you" and "I love you" daily.

Pick up litter and return something bio-degradable to the earth.

Call, write or text someone.

Take time to be alone, quiet and think about why you are here.

Practice random acts of kindness.

Read something worthwhile.

Try something new.

And lastly, remember that Thumper's Mother said, "If you have nothing nice to say, say nothing at all." With politics as they are, that advice might just save some friendships and marriages.

DEP to Begin Forestry Project on Rt 28 in Shokan -Removal of dead or dying trees will protect utility lines that service Route 28 corridor/Assuring a healthy and vigorous forest is key to protecting quality of City's water supply The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) on Thursday announced a project that will remove potentially hazardous trees along a stretch of Route 28 in Shokan to protect utility lines, public safety, and improve the overall health and vigor of the forest adjacent to Ashokan Reservoir. The forestry project is expected to start during the first week of January and take as much as two months to complete. The work is expected to have little or no effect on traffic along Route 28.

The project will focus on a forested area on the south side of Route 28, in the vicinity of Longyear Road and Bonnie Brae Lane. DEP is working collaboratively with Central Hudson Gas & Electric to remove a number of fallen, dead or dying trees from this area. Central Hudson crews will trim and remove trees that are within falling distance of power lines, while timber experts working with DEP will address sections of the forest that are farther from the highway.

The conifer trees, many of them more than 100 feet tall, were planted by New York City in the early 1900s as part of the development of Ashokan Reservoir. At that time, the trees were raised in local nurseries and then planted densely (approximately 6 feet apart) on the lands that surround the reservoir. These planned forests have experienced significant mortality in recent decades as a result of underdeveloped root systems, extreme weather, fungal infections, damage from invasive species, and old age. Recent tropical storms - including Irene, Lee and Sandy - also toppled many similar trees in this area.

Over the past several years, DEP's professional forestry staff has managed the controlled and careful restoration of these forests. Along with protecting public safety and utility lines, forestry projects open the forest floor to sunlight and promote the natural growth of the next generation of forest. Some forestry projects near Ashokan in the 1990s and early 2000s have already seen significant regrowth, with multiple trees species replacing the single species that had been planted there a century ago. These growing, diverse and vigorous forests improve aesthetics, stabilize the soil, and continue to protect drinking water

The timely removal of timber from the Route 28 site will also allow the wood to be used by local businesses. Timber from the project, which is being harvested by a professional timber company based near Cooperstown, will be used for home building and finishing products. The volume of wood produced from this sustainable forestry project is enough to build 20 houses and provide a dozen jobs. All forestry projects on City water supply lands are done in accordance with water quality protection guidelines and New York State Forestry Best Management Practices.

DEC Accepting Applications for Urban Forestry Projects - Grants Will Enhance Green Space in Cities Throughout the State

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) is accepting applications to fund urban forestry projects that will enhance landscapes and provide green spaces in urban areas across the state, Commissioner Basil Seggos announced today.

"Trees and green space are an important part of a community, especially in densely populated urban areas where such resources are limited," Commissioner Seggos said. "Governor Cuomo and members of the State Legislature understand the benefits of community and urban forests for protecting our air and water and improving quality of life. These grants are a valuable tool to support local projects to develop and manage these resources.' This year, the Environmental Protection Fund is investing $2.3 million in tree planting, maintenance grants, tree inventory, and community forestry management plans. Grants are available to municipalities, public benefit corporations, public authorities, school districts, soil and water conservation districts, community colleges, not-for-profit organizations, and Indian nations or tribes. Awards range from $11,000 to $75,000, depending on municipal population. Tree inventories and community forestry management plans have no match. Tree planting and mainte-nance projects have a 25 percent match.

Urban forestry grants complement DEC's ongoing initiatives to address climate change, environmental degradation, environmental justice, and urban sprawl. Over the last five years, DEC has funded more than $4.6 million in grant projects that have a total value of more than $10 million.

This year's grant proposals should detail the scope of work and how the project will provide environmental, economic, and/or social benefits in the community. When applicants select projects, consideration should be given to underserved neighborhoods, as well as environmental issues of local concern. Applicants are also encouraged to form regional partnerships and submit proposals that help to implement watershed protection and initiatives with green solutions that will have the support of their Regional Economic Development Council.

DEC foresters are available to provide applicants with technical assistance. DEC staff will review completed grant applications and select recipients based on established rating criteria, including cost-effectiveness, projected benefits, use of recommended standards in implementation, community outreach, education, support, and regional economic impact.

The Department of Environmental Conservation's Urban Forestry Program will host a webinar on Jan. 5 at 2 p.m. to educate potential applicants on the grants process and answer questions. To register for this webinar go to the 2016 Urban and Community Forestry Grant Program Grants Gateway Application Training Webinar web page.

Applicants may apply for the grant in the Grants Gateway. Instructions and application are available on Grants Gateway website. Paper or hand delivered grant applications will not be accepted. The deadline for applications on the Grants Gateway is March 1, 2017 at 3 p.m. For more information, call DEC at (518) 402-9425.

> Sporting License Buyers -Beware of Opportunistic Websites

Anglers and hunters should be aware of at least two currently active non-DEC websites where one can, purportedly, purchase a fishing license, hunting license or receive hunter education training that meets New York requirements: Fishinglicense.org and Hunting-license.org

Among other things, these sites offer information on how their products can simplify the purchase of a New York State fishing license or hunting license. Though some of the logistical licensing information is correct and may be useful, these sites also offer a consumer the ability to purchase timesaving downloads for recreational licensing services that are specifically NOT affiliated with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

The consumer on these sites should understand that they are only getting 'assistance' for their money and not an actual fishing or hunting license. Additionally, the money being charged by these websites is not a 'credit' toward the purchase of any New York fishing or hunting license.

All of the New York licensing information that one needs can be found on the DEC Sporting Licenses web page.

White Sulphur Springs School Gets Two Water Bottle Filling Stations
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS: Through the collaborative efforts of the BOCES Wellness Team and Cornell Cooperative Extension, two water bottle filling stations were installed at the White Sulphur Springs School. The Wellness Committee has been working with SueAnn Boyd, Healthy Schools Coordinator at Cornell Cooperative Extension for the past eight months to bring a number of healthy options to the students and staff at BOCES. Although the water stations were just installed, the school is already seeing a positive impact. The students are excited to drink the cold filtered water and fill their water bottles.

"We are really excited about our partnership with Cornell Cooperative Extension, it has opened a lot of doors for our students and staff," stated Ashlea Prouty, Coordinator of the BOCES Wellness Team, "Having the water filling station is such a benefit for everyone. The positive impact of having the kids stay hydrated throughout the day affects them physically as well as mentally."

The water filling stations were purchased through the Dept of Health's Creating Healthy Schools Grant for BOCES and the Monticello, Fallsburg and Liberty School districts. Cornell Cooperative has also used the grant to purchase salad bars for aforementioned districts and will use the remaining funds to roll out initiatives to increase physical activity throughout the school day and implement a food waste and recycling management systems.

"I think this is a great initiative. I have enjoyed working with the staff at each of the districts. They are very receptive and passionate in what they do," said SueAnn Boyd, Healthy Schools Coordinator at Cornell Cooperative Extension, "I would love to see each of the schools increase the number of water filling stations throughout their district. We are hoping that installing the water filling stations will help lower the consumption of sugary beverages and possibly make water the preferred beverage of choice."

learn crafts, hike and play outdoors, and warm up with healthy meals.

"At this point, children have been in school for more than three months. School-break camps allow a week's worth of fresh air, physical fitness and a 100% break from screen time," Martin explains. "At the end of the week, they leave refreshed and rejuvenated as they prepare to head back to their classrooms."

Not only did Winter Day Camp include transportation and meals, but campers were also able to spend more time exploring nature. Guided hikes, outdoor games, and snow tubing were all a part of the outdoor activities. Inside, after warming up with a mug of hot cocoa, kids were able to participate in arts and crafts, archery, indoor-rock climbing, educational nature programs, and a talent show, among other fun activities.

If you missed Winter Day Camp, don't worry, Summer Day Camp is right around the corner and registration is now open! For more information on Day Camp, please call 845-985-2291 or email info@frostvalley,org.

First I want to wish everyone a Healthy, Prosperous and Happy New Year – Now where do I begin?

On Oct 15 I had a minor heart attack, no damage, after a few day stay at Catskill Region I was taken to Orange Regional, While there I was told that I need my cardiac valve replaces ASAP, appointment was made for Dec 8 at Vassar Brothers in Poughkeepsie to have my valve replaced, which was done and I am now two days into my fourth week since the surgery. Patty and I want to take time out to publicly thank everyone that has taken time out of their lives to come to our aid. It has been greatly appreciated and say that with humbled heart.

Now to get down to the real business - here are some of my favorite

WJFF Radio and St. John's Episcopal Church offer Messiah Community Sing Along

Sunday, Decem-(From Pg. 1) What began in 2014 as WJFF's end of the year celebration of 25 years of pubic radio broadcasting has become St. John's Episcopal Church's Bicentennial Anniversary celebration. If you missed this joyful community event you will have to wait until next year. "St. John's is overjoyed to usher in and celebrate the Christmas and holiday season," said Rev. Scheide. "We look forward to hosting the WJFF Messiah Sing Along next year."

Under the more than capable baton of Eldred School District music teacher Kristina Martorano, the ensemble of local amateur and professional keyboard, string and woodwind players, provided the accompaniment. Musicians included Leon Hilfstein, Valerie Bayum, Jamille Shands, Isabel Laufner, Rebecca Perlman, Tasa Faronii, Monica Rose, Michael Aiese, Melissa Stilich, and Pat Gersten. They were joined by Delaware Valley Opera soloists Kathy Geary, Carol Diefenbach and Kevin Hanek. This year's chamber ensemble also included middle school cellist Abigail Bizjak and Braeden Ross who "can't wait to play again next year."

The community-sing-along, doesn't fill the stage with a chorus of professional sopranos, altos, tenors and basses. Rather the audience becomes the Oratorio chorus. Each participant receives a copy of the choral music lyrics. They not only enjoy a beautiful concert by members of the DVO; they experience the exhilaration of blending their voices with some of the neighborhood's best choral singers.

"This is by no means an original holiday event," says executive producer and WJFF board member Tasa Faronii, Handel's Messiah as a community sing-a-long is a global interactive celebration. It is a seasonal tradition preformed all over the world. And we're delighted to present this annual gift to the ty sing-a-long is a global interactive celebration. It is a seasonal tradition preformed all over the world. And we're delighted to present this annual gift to the community."

The price of admission to this event was a non-perishable food item or personal care item (such as shampon, soan, toothpaste, socks, winter glove) all personal care item (such as shampoo, soap, toothpaste, socks, winter glove,) all of which were presented to the local Food Pantry and Helping Hands, two non-profit organizations that provide meals and personal care to members of our community most in need.

Rev. Scheide and the congregation at St. John's Episcopal Church deserved the standing ovation that concluded the afternoon with familiar Hallelujah Chorus.

A Note to the Community:

We lost a tremendously respected member of our community on December 7, 2016. Michael "Mickey" Mullen was a valued Town of Neversink Councilman who served with honor, integrity and dedication. Mickey was a man of quiet dignity who exhibited strength of character and brought to the Board a common sense approach as well as unity. He will be deeply missed by all who had the pleasure of knowing him.

As a result of Mickey's untimely passing the Neversink Town Board has decided to appoint Scott Grey to fill the board vacancy and finish out Mickey's term. Scott is a former Neversink Councilman who most recently served on the town's Board of Assessment Review. Scott is an active community member and proven leader, his knowledge and experience will be an asset to the town and the Town Board. We welcome Scott Grey.

Governor Cuomo 1st Proposal of 2017 State of State: Making College Tuition-free for New York's Middle-

Clas Families - First-in-the-Nation Program Provides Free Tuition to New Yorkers Making Up to $125,000 Per Year at all SUNY and CUNY

Two- and Four-Year Colleges

Governor Andrew M. Cuomo, with U.S. Senator Bernie Sanders of Vermont, today unveiled the 1st signature proposal of his 2017 agenda: making college tuition-free for New York's middle-class families at all SUNY and CUNY two- and four-year colleges. New York's tuition-free college degree program, the Excelsior Scholarship, is the first of its kind in the nation and will help alleviate the crushing burden of student debt while enabling thousands of bright young students to realize their dream of higher education.

Under this groundbreaking proposal, more than 940,000 middle-class families and individuals making up to $125,000 per year would qualify to attend college tuition-free at all public universities in New York State. The Excelsior Scholarship program will ensure that students statewide, regardless of their socio-economic status, have the opportunity to receive a quality education and gain the skills they need to succeed in our global economy.

"A college education is not a luxury - it is an absolute necessity for any chance at economic mobility, and with these first-in-the-nation Excelsion Scholarships, we're providing the opportunity for New Yorkers to succeed, no matter what zip code they come from and without the anchor of student debt weighing them down," Governor Cuomo said. "New York is making a major investment in our greatest asset - our people - and supporting the dreams and ambitions of those who want a better life and are willing to work hard for it. I am honored to have the support of Senator Sanders, who led the way on making college affordability a right, and I know that together we can make this a reality with New York leading the way once again."

U.S. Senator Bernie Sanders said, "If the United States is to succeed in a highly competitive global economy, we need the best educated workforce in the world. With exploding technology, and with most of the good paying jobs requiring more and more education, we need to make certain that every New Yorker, every Vermonter and every American gets all the education they need regardless of family income. In other words, we must make public colleges and universities tuition free for the middleclass and working families of our country. That is what Governor Cuomo is fighting for here in New York and it's something I strongly support. I urge New York legislators to pass this enormously important proposal, and become a model for the rest of the nation.'

New York's tuition-free degree program, the Excelsior Scholarship, requires participating students to be enrolled at a SUNY or CUNY two- or four-year college full-time. The initiative will cover middle-class families and individuals making up to $125,000 through a supplemental aid program. Currently 80 percent of NY households statewide make $125,000 or less with an estimated 940,000 households having college-aged children that would be eligible for the program. Based on enrollment projections, the plan will cost approximately $163 million per year once fully phased in.

The new initiative will be phased in over three years, beginning for New Yorkers making up to $100,000 annually in the fall of 2017, increasing to $110,000 in 2018, and reaching $125,000 in 2019.

As student debt continues to soar - reaching $1.2 trillion nationwide and surpassing credit card debt. car debt and home equity lines of credit as the second largest source of consumer debt, this program will work to make college affordable for students and families.

The initiative will work by leveraging New York State's generous aid programs. Currently, the Tuition Assistance Program or TAP provides nearly $1 billion in grants to college students statewide and New York is one of only two states in the nation that offers this type of entitlement. Under the program, eligible students would still receive TAP and any applicable federal grants. Additional state funds would cover the remaining tuition costs for incoming or existing eligible students.

New York's Tuition Free Degree Program also incentivizes students to graduate from college on time. In 2013, only 38.7 percent of students attending a four-year public university and roughly 8.5 percent attending a two-year public college in New York completed their degrees on time. Moreover, in 2015, the average student loan debt in New York was $29,320.

With an average annual tuition ranging from $6,470-$6,330 at SUNY and CUNY for a bachelor's degree and $4,350-$4,800 for an associate's degree, the more time a student spends in college, the higher the level of debt. By mandating that students be enrolled full-time, New York's free tuition program will work to improve graduation rates and alleviate the heavy burden of student debt by encouraging more students to graduate on time in two to four

New York is also the only state in the nation to offer a need-based loan forgiveness entitlement program that provides awards to New York State college graduates regardless of their degree or profession. The Governor's "Get on Your Feet Loan Forgiveness" program provides up to 2 years of student loan forgiveness to recent New York State college graduates. This program, coupled with New York's new Excelsior Scholarships Program, will ensure New York continues to lead the way forward on college affordability.

A college degree is necessary for increased earning power. Studies show a person with a bachelor's degree, on average, will earn about 66 percent more over his or her lifetime than a person without a college degree. Those with an associate's degree can expect to earn 24 percent more than a person with a high school diploma. Moreover, a college education is increasingly becoming a necessity, not a luxury. According to projections by the New York State Department of Labor, approximately 3.5 million jobs statewide will require an associate's degree or higher by 2024. As the landscape of the global economy continues to shift, investing in a highly-qualified, highly-educated workforce has never been more important.

Assemblymember Cahill Issues Statement on Plan to Close Indian Pont

News of an agreement for the limited licensure of the Indian Point Nuclear Power Plant deserves our detailed attention. While it appears that safety upgrades are part of the proposal to allow Entergy to continue to apply for a new six year license without New York State official opposition, we must be vigilant to assure that the facility does not transition from an operating power plant to a dormant nuclear waste dump.

In addition, Central Hudson customers count on Indian Point power to keep electricity costs affordable in their homes and businesses, particularly during periods of peak demand. It is important that reasonable replacement sources of energy and aggressive conservation measures be made available to them before Indian Point is taken off line.

During my tenure as chair of the Assembly Energy Committee, we focused on the impact ANDY KALTER, 434-5371 Indian Point had our communities, including repeatedly pointing out safety lapses and the failure to properly regulate and prevent regular planned discharge of radioactive material in the Hudson River.

Decommissioning the Indian Point nuclear facility has been central to the work of environmentalists in the Hudson Valley for several decades. In particular, the leadership of people like the great Pete Seeger and that of former Congressmen John Hall and Maurice Hinchey should be acknowledged. Their years of service in raising concerns over the immediate and long term dangers of the facility, particularly in view of its proximity to population centers in the Hudson Valley and the Greater Metropolitan Area served as a clarion call.

While the details of the agreement are not yet complete, that the process is coming together and the inevitability of Indian Point's closure now imminent, we must be particularly attentive to the terms. Still, even this first step is an important one.

Out in the Night Documentary Film Opens DVAA's Winter Salon Series

On Saturday, January 14 at 2 pm, Delaware Valley Arts Alliance will kick off its Salon Series with a free screening of "Out in the Night," the 2014 documentary by Newburgh filmmaker blair dorosh-walther. Janus Adams, host of WJFF's "Janus Adams" show, will moderate an audience talkback following the film. The event will take place in the Krause Recital Hall at the Delaware Arts Center, 37 Main Street, Narrowsburg.

"The Salon Series is inspired by the cultural salons of old," says Bizzy Coy, DVAA Program Director, "where artists and thinkers gathered in coffee shops, cafes, and living rooms to discuss the arts and issues of the day."

"Out in the Night" follows the true story of the "New Jersey 4," a close-knit group of black lesbian friends who went to Greenwich Village for a fun night out on August 18, 2006, but ended up arrested and charged with gang assault and attempted murder. Their arrest was followed by a media frenzy, spurred by sensational headlines like "Attack of the Killer Lesbians." The true story is revealed in the documentary-that these women were defending themselves against a violent street harasser.

Emmy Award-winning journalist, historian, and bestselling author of eleven books, Dr. Janus Adams is host of JANUS ADAMS, the new public radio show and podcast. The program airs and streams live on WJFF 90.5 FM Saturdays at 4:00 PM ET. Dr. Adams has been engaged by history and culture since childhood.

DVAA's winter Salon Series continues throughout the winter with jazz pianist Joe Vincent Tranchina (January 28), "Off the Shelf" literary event (February 11), "Bring on the Thaw" poetry reading (February 25), "Shakespeare Songs" performance and talk (March 11), and the second annual Wikipedia Edit-a-Thon (March 18).

Each club or group will represent a specific country from around the globe and provide an interactive, three-dimensional display of the geography, history, culture, and cuisine of their chosen location. Participants can "tour the world" from 6:30 to 7:00 pm and then settle down for the 10 minute skit or presentation each club brings to the stage, highlighting what they have learned.

Anyone is welcome to visit this family-friendly, popular event. More information about this opportunity or the Sullivan County 4-H Youth Development program can be obtained by calling 845-292-6180 or emailing mlr34@cornell.edu.

2017 Metropolitan Opera Live on Screen at SUNY Sullivan - Saturday, January 21, 2017 ROMÉO ET JULIETTE (Start - 12:55 pm) When Diana Damrau and Vittorio Grigolo starred opposite each other in Manon at the Met in 2015, the New York Times said, "the temperature rises nearly to boiling every time Damrau and Grigolo are on stage together." Now they're back as opera's classic lovers, in Gounod's lush Shakespeare adaptation. The production, by director Bartlett Sher, has already won acclaim for its vivid 18th-century milieu and stunning costumes during runs at Salzburg and La Scala. Gianandrea Noseda conducts the sumptuous score.
