LOOKING BACK

Beatrice Akerley Published July 25, 1996

It was a beautiful spring morning in the early 1900's when I asked my dad why Claude Cobb, one of our neighbors, was sawing down one of our beautiful maple trees. His answer was that it was leaning toward the house. I couldn't figure that one out, why couldn't it lean toward the house? Grandfather was sitting in his favorite rocker on the back porch and since he usually had all the answers, I went to him. This time he walked me to Koon's store where he bought a package of Nasturtium seeds. My dad didn't sell seeds, he gave them away. Our government supplied seeds for anyone who wished to plant a garden, but not flower seeds.

Grandfather took mother's old leaky galvanized wash tub and placed it on our new tree stump. He gave me a pail and he took one also and started filling the tub from soil that we had shoveled up from behind the bam. When the tub was full he smoothed it off and made little holes with a stick. I dropped in the seeds and my sister Edith, who had come out of the house to help us, covered them. In a few weeks, I stopped crying for my maple tree as the stump and old wash tub was now just a mass of beautiful flowers. Grandfather said we could pick as many as we wanted for the more we picked the more would grow. Edith and I found this to be true.

Mrs. Massey, an elderly lady, had a summer home just above our house and each morning she passed by our house on her daily walk. She was very friendly and I admired her very much. One Sunday morning, I had just gathered a lovely bouquet of the lovely Nasturtiums as she came walking down the road. I offered her my bouquet and she accepted it with a smile and said "Is this for me?1 It made me feel real proud and grown up. A few days later, Mrs. Massey walked into our store and purchased a large bag of "Molly Codies". I haven't seen "Molly Codies" in years. Anyway, she gave them to me. I felt really bad for fear that she felt that she had to do something in return for my gift of the flowers but grandfather said that she just wanted to do something nice in return.

I passed the bag to him as I knew that "Molly Codies" were one of his favorite candies. So we sat and munched them until neither

Household Hint: How to Attract Fireflies to your Backyard

Fireflies need tall grasses to signal their potential mates, trees to deposit their eggs; moisture and rotting wood to attract prey; and darkness to put on a great show. When you have all of these things in place, over time your firefly population will grow.

The Glow of the Fireflies' Light Still Shines

Fireflies light up our memories! Like fireworks, riding up to the Blue Hole on our bikes to take a quick dip on a hot day, or tubing down the Rondout in an old tire tube, fireflies are a sign of summer. Fireflies are beautiful, mysterious, and magical –and for many of us, catching or spotting them is an important sign that summer has arrived.

Fireflies have fascinated mankind for thousands of years appearing inliterature, prose and poetry. They were among the first luminescent animals to have been recorded in ancient literature in the Chinese Book of Odes that was written somewhere between 1500 and 1000 B.C.

Fireflies are not flies nor are they bugs. They are actually beetles. Fireflies, A/K/A Lightening Bugs, talk to each other with light. Fireflies emit light to attract mates. They also use their light emitting apparatus to communicate for other reasons including defending territory or to warn predators to go away. In most firefly species, both sexes glow. Often the male will fly, while females will wait in trees, shrubs and grasses to spot an attractive male. If she finds one, she'll signal it with a flash of her own.

These little beetles get their names "firefly" and "lightning bug" because of the intermittent light they naturally produce. This phenomenon is called bioluminescence. The bioluminescent organs in fireflies are found on the underside of the abdomen.

A firefly's tail contains two chemicals: luciferase and luciferin. Luciferin is heat resistant, and it glows under the right conditions. Luciferase is an enzyme that triggers light emission. ATP (Adenosine triphosphate), a chemical within the firefly's body, converts to energy and initiates the glow.

All living things, not just fireflies, contain ATP. The molecule ATP, famous as an essential energy source inside cells, also carries critical messages between cells.

One of the first and most enduring facts most biology students learn in class is that all living cells use this small molecule (ATP) as fuel. That universal energy currency drives the biological reactions that allow cells to function and life to flourish-making ATP a crucial player in the biological world.

In fireflies, energy derived from ATP causes a reaction. The result, the luciferase enzyme converts a compound called luciferin into oxyluciferin, and produces light or "luminescence".

The light of the firefly, long the subject of scientific curiousity and nocturnal wonder, has sparked a growing interest in luminescence as a technique in medical and biochemical research.

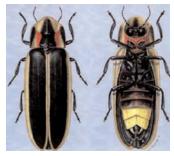

In 1975 he technique, known as "the firefly system," was adopted for use in the study of heart disease, muscular dystrophy, urology and antibiotic testing.

Fireflies have also helped scientists develop real-time, noninvasive imaging to see what's happening inside living organisms.

Firefly lights are the most efficient lights in the world -100% of the energy is emitted as light. Compare that to an incandescent bulb, which emits 10% of its energy as light and the rest as heat, or a fluorescent bulb, which emits 90% of its energy as light. Because it produces no heat, scientists refer to firefly lights as "cold lights."

Adult fireflies aren't the only ones that glow. In some species, the larvae and even the eggs emit light. Firefly eggs have been observed to flash in response to stimulus such as gentle tapping or vibrations.

An adult firefly lives only long enough to mate and lay eggs. They may not need to eat during their adult life stage. The larvae usually live for approximately one year before becoming adults and giving birth to the next generation. (Contd. Pg. 4)

The Glow of the Fireflies' Light Still Shines

(From Pg. 3) Unfortunately Ipads and cell phones seem to be taking the place of many of the fun things that created the cherished memories of older generations. It has been reported fireflies are disappearing from marshes, fields and forests all over the country –in fact, all over the world. And if it continues, fireflies may fade forever, leaving our summer nights a little darker and less magical.

Then again, this year we began seeing fireflies during the last week in May in Sundown. Talking to our daughter who lives in Swan Lake, she reported the same.

The magic of the fireflies was certainly present this weekend in Sundown. As we celebrated Father's Day in the great outdoors we all enjoyed the beautiful light show in the backyard. The little ones did have fun chasing them. And we can also thank the fireflies for those very popular light sticks. The chemical found in fireflies can now be synthesized and is used in common glow sticks that will light up the way to summer fun for many young children... and maybe some of the older ones, too.

Fireflies are still beautiful, mysterious, and magical for many of us. Every blink of a firefly still says — "Believe!"

$500 Tri-Valley Lions Community Service and Achievement Awards approved for 5 Tri-Valley High School Graduates

(From Pg. 1) The 5 students will receive the actual award checks once they submit proof of college enrollment to our Treasurer, Terry Delaney. Congratulations to these wonderful students who spent so much of their time assisting with community tasks and services. We wish each student continued success in their ongoing endeavors, and we hope that some of these students will become future members of The Tri-Valley Lions organization.

Each student submitted applications and essays of their service to the community and their scholastic achievements which were reviewed by the Award Committee. As Lion Director Claire Rennison stated "each one of the students submitted compelling documentation of their academic achievements and hours of community service and it was difficult to select just one of the students" so The Tri-Valley Lions approved all five students for receipt of awards.

The Tri-Valley Lions, which was chartered in 1977, is now in our 47th year of existence, and we are always looking for new members. Just as a reminder, The Tri-Valley Lions bring in donations and funding by selling sodas from our Soda Booth for events at the Grahamsville Fairgrounds, selling Chocolate Easter Bunnies, our Annual Journey for Sight Walk and Tag Day. Our funding allows us to continue to provide monetary and service support to Local Food Pantries, Tri-Valley School Community Service and Achievement Awards, Children's Eye Screenings, support for Diabetes, Lymphoma and Leukemia organizations, childhood cancer, WSUL Heart-A-Thon, Guiding Eyes for The Blind, and so much more. Chapter 3

The back door had been jimmied with a crowbar. It must have taken someone with a helluva lot of upper body strength and a four-foot bar, I thought, as I looked at the deep gouges in the frame, the splintered trim, and finger-width dents in the three-inch oak door. It was a stout four feet wide and sported strap-iron hinges that looked to be at least one and a half feet long. The door was formidable, but hadn't stopped the criminals.

Inside, shelves lined the walls and were filled with canned goods and all sorts of household sundries, while display cases, tables and double-sided free-standing shelves created aisles. A check-out counter with a brass cash register stood by the front door, and a refrigerated section towards the back of the store held fresh vegetables, as well as meats in see-through lighted cases. There was a large Toledo scale for weighing bacon, chops or steaks atop the counter, and a roll of white butcher paper in a dispenser stood next to it. At the rear, behind the butcher block and not accessible by the public, was a large walk-in cooler. That was where I headed.

I almost fell over Patrol Sergeant Andrew Claypoole, who was sitting in one of the wooden chairs that were usually found around the big pot-bellied stove, where some of the old men from the neighborhood would gather to gossip, and tell war stories. Claypoole was drinking from a bottle of Coca-Cola and looking like he'd rather be anywhere but here. I said, "Morning, Andy . . . it's been a long time since we've crossed trails."

"Yeah. It has been. This your first case? As a dick, I mean . . ."

"It is, yeah, it is. I look that green to you?"

"Pretty much . . . but not as green as you're gonna be. They're in there," he pointed at the cooler door with his left thumb and took another sip from the cola bottle. Then added, "I'll leave another dime on the register and have one of these Cokes ready for ya. You're gonna want it after you go in there."

"Is it that bad?"

"Worst one I've ever been on," Andy said as he rose from his seat and headed for the front of the store where the soda pop was kept in an old Crosley refrigerator, and sold on the honor system.

I went around the counter, stepped past the butcher block, and took a deep breath, then pulled the latch that opened the thick insulated door to the walk-in cooler, where I found the abomination that still raises bile in my throat as I write this, forty-some years after the fact.

The bodies of an elderly man and woman were hanging from meat hooks that were attached to wooden joists in the ceiling. The skin had been peeled from both corpses with surgical precision, and was nowhere in sight. It was at that point I wanted to puke, and felt the room closing in on me. My heart was thumping out a regimental tattoo in my chest and I could not breathe. I had to get out of there.

I turned and pushed the iron bar that unlatched the heavy door. It clacked open, and allowed me to stumble into the fresh air, where Claypoole handed me a freshly opened bottle of Coca-Cola. I nodded my thanks and took a long pull of the cold, fizzy, sweet liquid. I swallowed, shook my head, and said, "Sweet, suffering Jesus . . ."

"It sure puts a crimp in your point-of-view, don't it?"

"Yeah, Andy. It does. This is Colorado Springs, for crissakes. We ain't supposed to be dealin' with shit like this."

"'Pears we are though. Like it or not."

I finished the soda and went to work, looking for evidence; trying to find the who, why and how of the horrific murders of two elderly members of the local community while I was sound asleep in my bed less than a mile away. Knowing that gave me the creeps. Even though Imogene and I hadn't been getting along very well lately, I'd be devastated if something like that happened to her, or, God forbid, our ten-year-old son Scottie. I forced those thoughts out of my mind and got on with the job.

After pulling my head out of my ass, I put on a pair of latex gloves I had in my jacket pocket, took a deep breath, and went back in the meat locker. A couple of things came to mind right away. There was more than one person at work in here, and, because the only illumination came from a single forty-watt bulb, they either had another portable light source, or this wasn't the first time they'd savaged a human body. The slash marks in the underlying tissue were sure, straight and without hesitation. I was certain of it.

I poked around in the cooler for a few more minutes without finding anything of significance to the case. Before I left however, I did something I've done in the presence of every victim of every murder scene I've ever investigated. I spoke to the deceased. Told them I would not forget, that I would speak for them, and never give up on the case until it was solved. If there is a hereafter-and I believe there is-I want the departed to know I am their advocate. Just as I would want someone to do for me.

The next thing I need to figure out, I thought as I reentered the land of light and the living, is why the killers moved both of the bodies down here . . . it defies logic and common sense, and it was done at great risk of exposure.

I blinked and took a deep breath as the cooler door clacked shut behind me. "Andy," I said, "do you have any thoughts about why the bodies were moved down here?"

Without hesitation, he said, "Sure. Make it easier to skin 'em."

"Of course. That sounds about right to me." I headed out the door and to the stairs, thinking, I should have remembered what old Professor Blackburn taught us about Occam the Arab and his razor... 'The simplest solution is usually the best solution.'

I was careful, as I went up the outside staircase, to avoid the blood, while admonishing myself for the third time in less than an hour, to Slow the fuck down, Jake. The dead have infinite patience, but your days are numbered... and you promised to speak for them... so you'd better get it right.

Chapter 4

Upstairs, the modest apartment was destroyed. The utter chaos seemed —in my mind at least —to be a match for the depravity that had taken place downstairs, with no apparent reason for it. If the vandals were trying to find something, they sure did a thorough job of searching. I wonder if they found it ...

The blood trail led to the bedroom, where it appeared the elderly couple were murdered in their bed. That much at least was apparent from the powder burns on the sheets and one of the pillows. I hope for their sake that they were asleep when the triggers were pulled. I was careful not to touch or move anything until the Medical Examiner got here, along with the photographer and fingerprint techs, but I was anxious to see where, and how, the deaths took place. After a brief look through the bedroom, I did the same in the bathroom, living room and kitchen, but nothing stood out. I closed the door and went back downstairs to talk with the butter and egg man, Rufus Gerry.

I found him sitting in his truck, right where Donnie Brearley put him an hour ago. "Mr. Gerry . . . my name is Jake McKern. I'm the lead detective on this case. Thanks for your help. I want to ask you a few questions about what you saw when you got here, but first, are you comfortable? Can I get you anything?"

Rufus Gerry looked to be in his mid-to-late-fifties, and judging by his face, hands, and clothes, he was a man accustomed to hard work and a life of toil. He pushed his brown fedora up high on his forehead and squinted at me with hard brown eyes behind rimless wire-framed glasses, then said through the driver's window of his truck, "You can get me outta here sonny. The ice is meltin' in the back, and butter don't keep in the heat. I still got a dozen more deliveries to make and people'll be wonderin' whereinthefuck I am . . ."

"I get it," I said. Then the Rage Monster who lives inside of me flew out of his cage, and before I could stop myself, I added, "But two old folks who ain't done anything to anybody are lying in there, dead, and butchered. They're depending on me to catch the sick sons-a-bitchs who done it. So, lose the fucking attitude and help me. I'll getya outta here as soon as possible. Otherwise, I'll clamp your nasty old ass in that patrol car over there and we'll do this downtown. That'll take all day. Call me 'sonny' again and I'll slap the bejeezus outta ya, just on general principles. We clear on all of that?"

Gerry looked at me for a moment, as if he was undecided how to take or give it, but then he got just a fraction of a smile, tugging at the corners of his mouth. He said, "We understand each other perfectly. I was outta line and . . ." He grinned, in spite of-or maybe because of-the circumstances, and continued, "Be damned if anybody's chewed my ass out like that since I was drafted into the Marine Corps, back in nineteen and seventeen. Was you by any chance a member?" "I was."

"In the war?"

"I was."

"Well, Semper Fi, Detective. Semper Fi. Ask away."

At that point the attitude adjustment was over and done with and we got right down to the business at hand. In the end though, Rufus Gerry wasn't able to provide anything of value. The perpetrators were done and gone by the time the delivery man arrived . . . or else there might have been a third killing to deal with. I got his contact information, then cut him loose after giving him one of my business cards and an admonition to call if he remembered anything else. He promised he would. I doubted I'd ever see him again.

"I get it," I said. Then the Rage Monster who lives inside of me flew out of his cage, and before I could stop myself, I added, "But two old folks who ain't done anything to anybody are lying in there, dead, and butchered. They're depending on me to catch the sick sons-a-bitchs who done it. So, lose the fucking attitude and help me. I'll getya outta here as soon as possible. Otherwise, I'll clamp your nasty old ass in that patrol car over there and we'll do this downtown. That'll take all day. Call me 'sonny' again and I'll slap the bejeezus outta ya, just on general principles. We clear on all of that?"

Gerry looked at me for a moment, as if he was undecided how to take or give it, but then he got just a fraction of a smile, tugging at the corners of his mouth. He said, "We understand each other perfectly. I was outta line and . . ." He grinned, in spite of —or maybe because of —the circumstances, and continued, "Be damned if anybody's chewed my ass out like that since I was drafted into the Marine Corps, back in nineteen and seventeen. Was you by any chance a member?" "I was."

"In the war?"

"I was."

"Well, Semper Fi, Detective. Semper Fi. Ask away."

I got his contact information, then cut him loose after giving him one of my business cards and an admonition to call if he remembered anything else. He promised he would. I doubted I'd ever see him again.

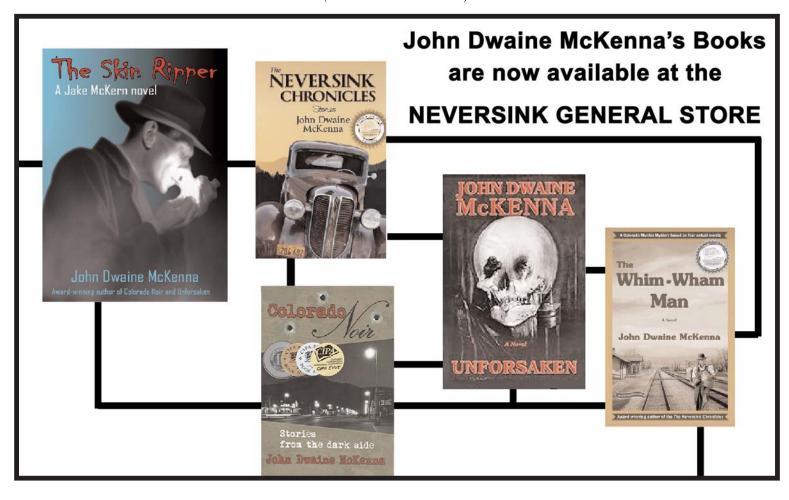

By 8 a.m., reinforcements began arriving, and word of the crime was spreading. The group of onlookers was growing bigger by the minute, and I could see a few of the newshounds I got to know as I convalesced from the Colorado Commercial Bank robbery, sniffing around, and trying to get the attention of Dunlap, or his trainee, Magness. The first cops to arrive went on crowd control. I told 'em to move the gawkers and rubberneckers back at least fifty feet and keep them there. They used their cruisers as barricades, and I left Claypoole in charge of everyone. He had the stripes of authority on his sleeves and the foghorn voice of an old drill instructor —which he once was —to go with it. He was perfect for the job. Pretty soon after he went out, the gawkers were backed off and we had containment, as well as better site preservation. The crime scene itself had been FUBARed —fucked up beyond all recognition —long before I arrived, by the five people who'd tromped all over it.

The coroner arrived. The man himself, not one of his minions, who were real physicians with a license to practice medicine. In an odd twist of the state laws at the time, the position of County Coroner, or Medical Examiner, was an elected one, and did not require a medical degree from an accredited university. Harry Bucklin, the El Paso County Coroner from back then, was just such a one. He was an ambitious little prick, a political operative with a sharp eye for ever higher office, and a publicity hound of the first magnitude. If he was here, it could only mean one thing. Someone in the Colorado Springs Police Department had called him. I remember thinking when I saw him drive up in a cherry red Buick, If I ever find out who tipped this guy off, I'll personally rip his nuts off and stuff 'em down his throat.

Coroner Bucklin pulled past the cops guarding the street entrance, drove into the alley from the south side, and parked where the butter and egg man's truck had been. He got out of the car with his trademark half-smoked cigar butt clamped in his teeth and waved to the crowd. He hitched up his suit pants and took a small black doctor's bag out of the trunk, then came over to where I waited by the back door. I started to say "Good Morning," but he cut me off.

"Where's the body?" Bucklin said. "I have an important meeting with the County Commissioners in a few minutes and I need to do this quickly."

"Of course. And just so you know, there are two bodies. A man and his wife." I told him nothing else, gave him no warning about what he was walking into. We'll just see what those prissy patent leather shoes and that oh, so cute, red bow tie looks like in a little while. "Come this way," was all I said.

We end each yoga session sitting together breathing in love and sending out peace. We bow our heads and the lift them, hands clasped over our hearts, and say, "Namaste." Without even knowing what "Namaste" meant, I could feel the invisible thread that joins each one of us together in a bond of lov-ing humanity. "Namaste" is Sanskrit for "bow." It translates to mean, "The divine in me bows, or recognizes, the divine in you." It is my soul connecting with your soul.

Friendship is our everyday connection. They are the ones who lead, follow, or walk along us on our path through life. They are necessary as air to breathe and food for nourishment. Mankind is social being and acceptance and love are what we seek from others.

To have a friend is to be a friend. We need to love ourselves to recognize love in another person.

In my lifetime, I have only lost one friend by choice, mainly to protect myself from a hurtful memory. Our parting was bittersweet. Another chose to exclude me. That bitterness burns even more. I wish her to return to that vacancy in my heart.

I call my friends "my tribe." They are a surrogate family who share different aspects of my life. They are the blessings that sweeten my day.

Pondering "Namaste", I realize all of humanity could be our friends if only we could recognize the need for love that exists in every human being.

By Carol Olsen LaMonda

I had a friend Whose sin was found And I walked away From shattered ground. I wish I didn't miss her.

I have a friend Who pushed me away She left my path And saddened my day. I miss her.

I do have friends Who can laugh and can cry As we walk together the way Of the mysterious journey. Namaste.

Art Show, Auction, Book Tent...Oh My! Stop in at the DPL where there's something for everyone

By Lisa Carroll

GRAHAMSVILLE-Are you interested in seeing some beautiful art? If so, please stop by the Anne Holt room on the first floor of the library where we have several stunning paintings by local artists on display. The pop up exhibition will go on throughout June. A few of these amazing paintings are even up for auction-donated by the artists with the intention that all monies garnered from the silent auction be donated to the library for our programs and to expand our book collection. We are incredibly fortunate to have such special people in our community and love the opportunity to showcase their special talents!

Speaking of incredible people in our community, we'd like to extend a great, big thank you to the Grahamsville Fire Department. The gentlemen of Station 67 were instrumental in getting our summer book sales tent up this season. It just wouldn't have been possible without these guys and we're so lucky to have them as neighbors.

Now that the tent is up, we've been busy filling it up with many, many books-both children's and adult's-as well as DVDs, CDs and an eclectic assortment of vinyl records. Prices are reasonable-fill a bag of books for $4, otherwise hardcovers are $0.50, paperbacks are $0.25 and children's books are $0.50. Not included in the bag of books: $1.00 for puzzles/games, vinyl records and DVD/CD/audiobooks. There are bags for your use as well as money envelopes at the front of the non-fiction table. Please put the money envelopes in the drop box or bring into the library during regular hours. However, please do not put any book (or otherwise) donations directly under the tent! Instead, come inside or call and speak with Michelle Gorman-she will gladly discuss your donations and set up a good time for you to bring them in. With that in mind, we are specifically looking for gently used, well cared for, books for the summer tent, as well as, our book sales tent at the Grahamsville Fair and our Giant Pumpkin Party book tent. In the past, some donations have been in such great condition and we didn't have them in our regular collection, so we added them...saving us a great deal of money and enabling us to purchase other books or add to our programs.

BLOOMING GREEN LAWN AND LANDSCAPE SERVICE

And this is where I'm going to plug our new online merch store. On our website, there is a tab to click on that will bring you directly to the apparel store with all kinds of things, from cups to hoodies with our logo, for you to purchase-if you'd like a sweatshirt or onesie with the Daniel Pierce Library logo on display.

In other news,

Our Sports Wellness program was a great success. On Tuesday, June 11, Rachel Brazell, PT, DPT, CNPT presented an informative sports and wellness program, guiding participants through topics to improve their overall athletic performance through the body and mind.

Next week, I'm going to spell out all of the particulars regarding our 2024 "Adventure Begins at Your Library" Summer Reading Program that starts June 30, so be on the lookout

The Scene Too By Jane Harrison

Every year I try my best, not so much to 'grow' things but to keep the plants I get to stay for having one are purely selfish. This picture shows the three I've transplanted this week (I love these herbs) and we shall see what happens this year... June 8th was a most memorable day with birthday celebrations of people I like a lot as well as admire. The first was at a beautiful piece of property in the mountainous part of Grahamsville. The birthday boy? BILL GRIESBECK, who reached the '30 year' milestone. This had the feel of an intimate family birthday and I was so privileged to be there. Hamburgers, hot dogs, an array of salads including the absolute best potato salad I have ever eaten (thank you LIL SCOLES) and a quinoa salad that was

Johnny Jules and Bobby D

Jaime

Bill Griesbeck similar to one I just started making (but tasted so much better!) And it wouldn't be an intimate family alive. Some years are good, some not so good. Last year I had killed everything off by, I think, mid- July which is the real reason I invested in my Lomi, a countertop composter.

Yes, yes, I know it's better for the earth but my justification birthday without music (BILL is a fantastic guitarist) provided by JOHNNY JULES and BOBBY D. These two share a special bond with the birthday boy so their inclusion made perfect sense. As did a few surprise guests. Friend PEGGY was down from Oneonta, and then there is 'this guy' and his husband PAUL. I had a minute to chat with JAIME and found out he's moving in a completely different direction. And frankly, I think he'll be very good at it. More about that as it comes to fruition.

From one party to another. This one also in a beautiful mountain setting, this time in Woodridge. I mean seriously, I've been in Sullivan County for more than a decade so how come

Mike Damil od MD and the Healers

so close to home! This time, to BEAVER JAM, and celebration of the birthday of GREG

The Electric Chords

CASTRO, guitarist extraordinaire of THE ELECTRIC CHORDS. If you remember, I suggested you get out to see this power trio while you still could for the price of a drink or two or dinner. They have been playing quite a bit at one of my old stomping grounds in NYC: THE BITTER END and it's only a matter of time.

Whenever I see an extravaganza like this (five bands for an afternoon into evening), I admit I set my expectations low. Silly me. First, the setting was so reminiscent to me of the many festivals I've been to over the last (mouth screws up, unwilling to say). OK, we'll settle for 'my lifetime". A mobile stage, excellent sound and more important, a smooth transi-followed by DURIEUX, out of all places, the Bronx! They were absolutely terrific too, with a set that, to me, was reminiscent of the best of MOTOWN in its most universally popular era.

MUSIC FESTIVAL over the last two years.

I want to extend my sincerest thanks to DEE and her golf cart, RICK and best buddy CASWYN MOON for their assistance to this lady who still thinks SHE'S 30! But it has strengthened my resolve for any number of things going forward.

But before any of these magical musical tours, I was able to at least pop by the park in front of THE TANGO in Hurleyville because besides the birthdays, June 8 was also WORLDWIDE

Big shout out to RACHEL CARRIGAN and FIBER ON MAIN, for gathering these fun people (and me) to the OPEN STUDIO on Wednesday afternoons (3ish to 6ish) where everyone brings what they are currently working on to share ideas. Two New Scams have Recently been Reported

It has been reported that there are two new scams to watch out for.

1. Someone asks to use your cell phone, they have an emergency, their car broke down, have to call mom or dad to pick them up.

Then they take your phone and transfer money from your account or accounts to their account.

2. Another is an email telling you they made an accidental deposit into your account and they need you to send it back to them.

Ulster County Executive Announces Preferred Name and Pronoun Plan

KINGSTON, NY - Ulster County Executive Jen Metzger announced the newly adopted Preferred Name and Pronoun Plan, which applies to all Ulster County employees to ensure an inclusive work environment in which all employees' identities and pronouns are fully and appropriately reflected and used.

The Preferred Name and Pronoun Plan recognizes that people may use a name other than their legal name, or pronoun, that reflects personal gender identity. This plan encourages an environment for personal expression, within community standards, allowing employees to officially notify the County of their preferred first name that differs from their legal name for:

- o Internal and external communications, including email
- o Phone directory
- o Onboarding materials, including employment applications
- o Non-driver employee ID badges
- o Personnel listing
- o Webpage

This Plan is consistent with current policies protecting employees against discrimination based on gender identity and expression and is a best practice for supporting transgender and gender non-conforming members of our County workforce. The Plan is also intended to include anyone who uses a preferred first name on a daily basis other than their legal/primary first name.

"The County government is a large organization with over 1,400 employees, and every one of our employees deserves a work environment in which they are respected and treated with dignity," said Ulster County Executive Jen Metzger. "Referring to our employees in name and pronoun as they wish to be identified is a meaningful step we can take to foster a culture of inclusion and help ensure that everyone feels respected and valued."

"I am very proud of the Ulster County Preferred Name and Pronoun Plan. Utilizing preferred names and pronouns allows each person to bring their whole self to the workplace and feel a sense of belonging and value. Ulster County's Preferred Name and Pronoun Plan creates equity for our LGBTQIA+ employees while fostering a culture of diversity and inclusion within our workforce, county jurisdiction and beyond," said Ulster County Chief Diversity Officer Esi Lewis.

"Discrimination on the basis of gender identity or expression is prohibited in all areas covered by the Human Rights Law, including employment, housing, places of public accommodation, non-religious schools, and more. The Ulster County Human Rights Department is excited to support this long-awaited inclusive step forward as we embrace all members of our community as equal," said Joe McDonald, Director of the Ulster County Human Rights Department.

"Implementing the Preferred Name and Pronoun Plan is vital for fostering an inclusive and respectful work environment. Calling someone by their preferred name and pronouns validates their identity, shows respect, promotes personal expression, and encourages a sense of belonging. This initiative enhances the overall experience for everyone, especially transgender and gender non-conforming individuals. Ulster County is committed to diversity, equity, and inclusion, ensuring all employees feel recognized and valued for who they are," said Peter Criswell, Chair of the Ulster County Legislature.

"Names are the essence of how we define ourselves. Not all cultures assume a person will have one name they did not choose for their whole lives. I am grateful to live in a place that values a more nuanced and sensitive approach that honors each person on their own terms," said Ulster County Legislator Limina Grace Harmon.

The preferred first name is used for internal communication and certain external communications (e.g. website pages, printed materials). Internal applications include, but may not be limited to: email, phone system, and business cards. ID Cards (employee identification cards) will display both legal and preferred first name. The County is obligated to use the legal first name for many official records and reports, including but not limited to certain employment and payroll records, employee benefits records, and time allocation reports.

Additionally, for new/prospective employees, the Ulster County Employee Application will be updated to provide a field for prospective employees to provide a preferred name. For existing County employees, a form can be submitted to the Personnel Department to update their records to reflect the preferred name.

Business owners, community members, and State Senator Peter Oberacker (NY 51st District) rallied at Veterans Memorial Park in Wurtsboro on Wednesday to try to convince the New York State Department of Transportation that closing Exit 114 on Route 17 Westbound would be detrimental to the Village of Wurtsboro.

The proposed closure is part of a NYSDOT plan to upgrade Route 17 to interstate standards.

Dear friends and members of the church,

It has been my honor and privilege to serve the Grahamsville, Sundown, and Mongaup Valley United Methodist Churches, as well as the local community, in Christian faith and love since 2018. After six years of local ministry, I have been appointed to a new church, the Astoria Korean United Methodist Church in Queens, as a lead pastor. This new journey of faith will begin on July 1st. The news is bittersweet for me. Indeed, Grahamsville and Sundown have become my second hometown since I moved to the United States, and I have lived here the longest. Your welcoming love in Christ has encouraged me to build relationships and grow as a church leader.

Do you remember when I first came as a seminary student pastor, a single man? Now, I am leaving as a provisional elder, a husband, and a father with my wife and son. My family is doing well in South Korea after a challenging period of adapting to new cultures and environments. Even though I have struggled with minor bug bites due to my different immune system, which take longer to heal, your hospitality and generous hearts have strengthened and empowered me through God's grace. This has helped me to learn not only English but also cultural differences and lifestyles. These long and short years of memories will be kept in my heart forever. They are my foundation, and I will continue to walk as a servant of the Lord, as you have walked with me.

As a token of my appreciation, I invite all friends and members of the church to a combined Sunday Worship Service on June 23rd at 10:30 AM, which will be the last Sunday I preside. There will also be a luncheon after the service, where I will provide Korean food for our loving community. Please feel free to come and enjoy the food. If you want to share your secret recipe dishes with others, please do so. Your presence will light up and warm our community and the church. I look forward to meeting you soon in God's grace. Amen.

Sincerely, Rev. Seung Jin Hong Grahamsville & Sundown & Mongaup Valley United Methodist Church

DEC Announces 2024 First-Time Camper Program Popular Free Program Returns for 5th Year to Help

Popular Free Program Returns for 5th Year to Help More New Yorkers Experience the Outdoors through Camping

Interested Campers Encouraged to Enter Lottery Open June 13 to 20

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Interim Commissioner Sean Mahar today announced the return of the popular First-Time Camper Program for the 2024 season. New York families that have never experienced camping will have the opportunity to try camping and other recreational activities in the great outdoors by registering for a fully stocked campsite at a select DEC-operated campground for a designated weekend this summer.

"DEC's introductory program for first-time campers is back and I am honored to welcome even more New Yorkers to check out great campgrounds in the Adirondacks and Catskills," Interim Commissioner Mahar said. "The First-Time Camper Program is an excellent way to get more New Yorkers outdoors and introduce them to the Empire State's unparalleled natural beauty with the help of Camping Ambassadors who assist new campers with all the basics. The program gives those who have never camped before the opportunity to sleep under the stars, as well as experience myriad outdoor activities such as fishing, hiking, boating, birding, and more."

New York State's First-Time Camper Program makes camping easy by providing a turnkey camping experience for families, especially those from underserved communities who may be unfamiliar with camping and the planning and supplies required to ensure the most enjoyable experience.

DEC will provide camping parties with a tent, sleeping bags, sleeping pads, camp chairs, a lantern, and firewood for a weekend of fun. Bathrooms and hot showers are a short walk from the campsites. A Camping Ambassador will meet participants at the campsite and help set up camp with a camping 101 lesson. To make the weekend getaway even more enjoyable, campers will have an opportunity to learn from experts how to fish, hike, bird watch, paddle, and more, all while having fun and making memories to last a lifetime.

Learn more from just a few of the hundreds of campers who have previously participated in the First-Time Camper Program by viewing videos on the DEC website.

Potential first-time campers are encouraged to enter the lottery beginning June 13 until June 20, 2024. Participants will then be randomly selected to fill camper slots. More information on the program can be found by visiting DEC's website.

Those entering the lottery must choose one facility from the participating locations in the Adirondacks and Catskills:

- o North South Lake Campground (Catskills) July 12-14
- o Ausable Point Campground (Adirondacks) July 19-21
- o Luzerne Campground (Adirondacks) July 26-28
- o Cranberry Lake Campground (Adirondacks) August 2-4
- o Northampton Beach Campground (Adirondacks) August 9-11
- o Mongaup Pond Campground (Catskills) August 16-18
- Kenneth L. Wilson Campground (Catskills) August 23-25
 For more information on DEC-operated campgrounds, including a list of campgrounds and schedules, visit DEC's website, or call DEC's Bureau of Recreation at 518-457-2500. To make reservations at any of these camping facilities, call ReserveAmerica at 1-800-456-CAMP (2267) or visit the NY State Parks ReserveAmerica website.

The First-Time Camper Program is offered through DEC's Adventure NY initiative and Division of Operations, which support making strategic investments to expand access to healthy, active, outdoor recreation; connect more New Yorkers and visitors to nature and the outdoors; protect natural resources; and boost local economies. More Than 50 Local Residents Complete Preparedness Class Topics Included Tornadoes, Floods, Heatwaves, Power Outages

Swan Lake, NY - This past weekend, 51 residents trekked to the Sullivan County Emergency Services Training Center to gain valuable insight into all types of emergencies by taking the New York State Citizen Preparedness Class.

Officials from the National Guard and the New York State Office of Emergency Management led the training, focusing on how to prepare for flooding, hurricanes, hot weather, tornadoes, winter storms, fires, power outages, cybersecurity incidents and more.

Lessons learned included:

o Develop an Emergency Plan. Since an emergency can strike at any time, create a plan for you and your family. Include important contact information, a special meeting place, and a list of medications (a 7-10-day supply). Check on emergency plans in your workplace, school, daycare and where you and your family spend time.

• Build an Emergency Survival Kit. During an emergency, you may lose heat, air conditioning, and/or phone service. Build a kit to help you get by for 7-10 days. Include medical supplies, canned goods, hygiene supplies, and some tools. Don't forget to have water on hand. At the time of an emergency, it may be hard to get or find.

• Be Aware. Pay attention to the news. Some emergencies, such as weather-related ones, come with advanced notice - others just happen. Sign up for NY-Alert at www.alert.ny.gov to get news on weather events, road closures and other local, county, regional or state alerts.

Jack Halchak, Chief Deputy Fire Coordinator for the Sullivan County Bureau of Fire, takes inventory of the to-go bags handed out to all participants of the Citizen Preparedness class.

• Get Involved. Check out your home for potential safety hazards and fix them. Take a basic first aid class. Learn how to turn the power and water off, if needed. Think about joining the local fire department or ambulance corps. Learn about the Red Cross. Don't forget about your neighbors - they may need some help.

Instructors also went over when and when not to call 911; what to do after an emergency happens; how to care for pets during disasters; important documents to make and have (wills, deeds, contacts, etc.); the need to have cash and water readily available; and the wisdom of a to-go bag kept ready at all times (one for each family member).

"This class covered a lot of material in a short period of time," said Jack Halchak, Chief Deputy Fire Coordinator for Sullivan County. "It gave those attending food for thought on how to be aware of their surroundings and plan ahead for emergencies that could happen at any moment. And at the class' conclusion, everyone received a backpack stocked with basic emergency supplies in order to get us started on preparing - on our own - for an emergency."

Ulster County Clerk Nina Postupack Welcomes Historical Photographer & High School Photography Exhibit to the Matthewis Persen House Museum

"I Am Superman," 2012, courtesy of Tom DeLooza

Kingston, NY - Ulster County Clerk Nina Postupack is pleased to welcome Tom DeLooza, a local historical photographer, to the Matthewis Persen House Museum, 74 John Street Kingston NY 12401, this Tuesday, June 18th. Beginning at 3pm, Mr. DeLooza will present a lecture and demonstration showcasing the art, history, and alchemical process of tintype photographs. This presentation is a perfect addition to the 12th annual LIGHT IN THE DARK juried high school photography exhibit currently on display showcasing gelatin prints from four area high schools. Despite being consumed by our digital world, students working in the darkroom have managed to develop a unique perspective and passion for this time honored craft of analog photography. The historic Person House offers the best setting for each of these events.

The Matthewis Persen House is an historic treasure. Visiting the museum is like stepping back in time. Stop by and witness these time honored processes within the walls of a period style home. These events are free and open to the public. The house is open to the public on the regular schedule of every Thursday and Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Saturdays from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., through Labor Day weekend, and afterward, on Saturdays only from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. until closing for the season on October 26th.

"DEC Does What?!" Podcast Episode 6 Now Available: Spread the Word, Not the Species

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) today released the latest episode of "DEC Does What?!", the biweekly podcast that features conversations with DEC experts about the agency's wide-ranging efforts to protect New Yorkers and the environment.

Episode Six- "Spread the Word, Not the Species"-looks at the critical work of DEC scientists to understand and combat invasive species and their impacts on the environment, economy, and human health.

Invasive species-including beetles, round goby, kudzu, and hydrilla-are one of the greatest threats to New York's biodiversity, causing habitat degradation, loss of native species, crop damage, and much more. In this episode, hosts Interim Commissioner Sean Mahar and Chief of Staff Erica Ringewald are joined by Research Scientists Cathy McGlynn and Jessica Cancelliere from the Bureau of Invasive Species and Ecosystem Health to discuss how DEC plays a critical role in research, monitoring, prevention, and management of invasive species across the state, including using eDNA as a tool to track down the presence of an invasive in the environment. They also provide tips to listeners on how everyone can help prevent the spread of species in our communities.

Episode Six also includes an update on environmental news and recent DEC initiatives, including reminders for New Yorkers to help identify and report invasive species (Know It, Avoid It, Report It), the agency's efforts to combat aquatic invasive species and protect New York waterways (Clean, Drain, Dry, and the Great Lakes Aquatic Invasive Species Landing Blitz). The episode closes with an update on the terrestrial invasive Joro spider and whether New Yorkers should be concerned about its potential arrival.

All episodes of "DEC Does What?!" are available on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, YouTube, Amazon Music, and all major podcast platforms.

Governor Hochul Announces More than $39 Million Awaraded to Develop Comprehensive Psychiatric Emergency Programs Comprehensive Psychiatric Emergency Programs Provide Immediate Care and Treatment to New Yorkers Experiencing a Behavioral Health Crisis

• Nine Awards to Increase the Statewide Total to 31 Programs and Provide Additional Capacity to Serve Thousands of Individuals Experiencing a Behavioral Health Crisis

Governor Kathy Hochul today announced that a total of $39.1 million in state funding was awarded to nine community-based hospitals to develop new comprehensive psychiatric emergency programs. Once established, the programs will increase the statewide total to 31 and provide needed capacity to serve thousands of additional individuals who experience a behavioral health crisis.

"Expanding hospital-based psychiatric emergency programs is a critical component of our efforts to strengthen New York State's mental healthcare system," Governor Hochul said. "This funding will provide community-based hospitals with capital to establish new programs, so they can quickly evaluate and provide care to anyone experiencing a behavioral health crisis."

OMH Commissioner Dr. Ann Sullivan said, "Comprehensive psychiatric emergency programs provide a full range of services to individuals in crisis or seeking treatment. By adding new capacity at community-based hospitals, we will be able to significantly improve access to this care statewide, including to areas that were previously underserved. This funding reaffirms Governor Hochul's full commitment to strengthening our state's mental health care system and will ensure all New Yorkers have access to the critical services they can rely on when they need it."

Administered by the state Office of Mental Health, the conditional awards were provided to five hospitals located in New York City and four located in the upstate areas to develop and operate new comprehensive psychiatric emergency programs or establish a satellite location. Funding recipients include: New York City:

- o St. Barnabas Hospital, $5 million
- o Montefiore Medical Center, $4.6 million
- o Maimonides Medical Center, $4.9 million
- o Flushing Hospital Medical Center, $4.5 million
- o NYU Langone Health, $5 million
- Upstate New York:
- o¹ Faxton St. Luke's Healthcare (Oneida County), $493,253

o Olean General Hospital (Cattaraugus County), $5 million

o Arnot Ogden Hospital (Chemung County), $4.8 million
o Claxton-Hepburn Medical Center (St. Lawrence County), $4.8 million

Comprehensive psychiatric emergency programs are a primary entry point to the mental health system for individuals in need of crisis treatment in a safe and comfortable environment. They provide a full range of psychiatric services to New Yorkers experiencing a behavioral health crisis, including individuals with co-occurring disorders, substance use disorders, intellectual and developmental disabilities, and medical conditions; and can admit individuals for up to 72 hours if they need extended observation.

These programs receive referrals from providers, emergency medical services transport, police transport, and walkins. Individuals are first screened, then assessed and examined to determine their mental healthcare needs. Individuals are then provided a treatment plan tailored to their needs.

The programs also include mobile crisis services, which can respond to behavioral crises in the community and help reduce the need for an emergency evaluation or admission. Mobile crisis services also support individuals in the community while they await follow up services.

The funding is part of Governor Hochul's $1 billion plan to strengthen New York State's continuum of mental health care. With the majority of this capital funding in procurement, the plan is now providing the funding needed to open new programs, expand effective initiatives, and develop thousands of units of specialized housing to serve individuals living with mental illness.

DEC Announces Proposed Regulations to Ease Transition to Paper Sporting Licenses and Tags for License Issuing Agents

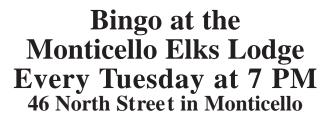

Public Comments Accepted until August 12

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Interim Commissioner Sean Mahar today announced a regulatory proposal that would enable License Issuing Agents and Officers (LIAs) to charge a nominal printing fee to recover costs associated with printing and mailing paper sporting licenses and other items sold through DEC's Automated Licensing System (DECALS). The proposal does not include any additional fees if the license buyer prints a license themselves.

"Our partnering License Issuing Agents serve a critical role supporting DEC's statewide wildlife conservation and management programs," Interim Commissioner Mahar said. "The proposal released today is designed to aid the transition to paper licenses and tags this fall to ensure LIAs are able to continue to provide their services. DEC encourages New Yorkers to provide public comments as this process continues toward implementation later this year."

Beginning this August, all hunting, fishing, and trapping licenses and associated tags will be printed on plain paper rather than plastic stock. Because LIAs will supply their own paper, printers, and ink, DEC is proposing a rule change to IM YORK State and Federally Licensed 163 Krumville Road, CR2A (845) 657-6330 (Ph.) provide LIAs the option of charging a $1 fee to cover their material costs. Additionally, this proposal will enable DEC's license vendor to levy a $2 fee for licenses purchased online or by phone for which the buyer requests the license be printed and mailed. All license buyers who purchase online, by phone, via DEC's mobile app, or in-person at an LIA will have the option to avoid the fee by choosing to receive their licenses and tags via email for free printing at home.

Additional information about the transition to paper licenses and tags can be found on DEC's website. The full text of the proposed changes are available on DEC's proposed regulations webpage.

DEC is interested in the viewpoints of license holders and encourages public feedback on this proposal. Comments will be accepted through Aug. 12, 2024, and can be submitted via e-mail to wildliferegs@dec.ny.gov with the subject line "Paper license transaction fee" or via mail to the Division of Fish and Wildlife, Bureau of Wildlife, 625 Broadway, Albany, NY 12233-4754.

Ulster County, in Partnership with OSI, Invites Public to Ribbon-Cutting for Newly Improved O&W Rail Trail

KINGSTON, NY - Ulster County Executive Jen Metzger, in partnership with the Open Space Institute (OSI), the Towns of Rochester and Wawarsing, and the Village of Ellenville, is pleased to announce a ribbon-cutting in Accord to celebrate the improvement of five miles of the Ontario and Western ("O&W") Rail Trail on Friday, June 21, at 2 p.m. at the Rochester Town Park, 50 Scenic Road, in Accord.

The improvement projects included the repair of a 3.2-milelong trail section between Accord and Kerhonkson and a 2.1-milelong section stretching north from the Village of Ellenville toward Port Ben. The work also included new trail surfacing, replacement of three bridges, trailhead parking area improvements in the hamlet of Accord, vegetation maintenance, and drainage improvements.

"We're committed to enhancing the County's world-class trail network in all corners of the County, providing recreational and non-motorized transportation opportunities for residents of all abilities, and bringing more visitors to our Main Streets," said County Executive Metzger. "OSI has been a great leader and partner in this effort, and I want to thank OSI President and CEO Erik Kulleseid and his team for their pioneering work to improve our trail system, including here in Rochester, Wawarsing, and Ellenville."

"As demand for greenway trails increases - for transportation, recreation, and community connections - OSI is leading the effort to reinvent the entire O&W line as part of our Growing Greenways initiative," said Erik Kulleseid, president and CEO of OSI. "From building partnerships to land acquisition, trail restoration projects, and more, OSI is doing everything it takes to accomplish our goal of creating a connected corridor that helps grow the region's trail network, links communities, and expands public access to nature."

Together costing more than $1 million, the improvement projects were managed by OSI and funded by Ulster County, with OSI providing $95,000 in project management services. Thanks to a generous donor, OSI also provided a 50-foot steel truss bridge for improvements completed in Ellenville.

BACKGROUND:

In 2021, the Ulster County Legislature awarded OSI $2.1 million in American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds to complete rail trail improvement projects in the region. Following substantial improvements to the Wallkill Valley Rail Trail in 2023, the two O&W projects mark OSI's successful completion of all Ulster County-ARPA funded initiatives.

The restoration of the O&W Corridor was outlined as a priority in the 2020 New York State Greenway Trails Plan.

Improvements throughout the O&W Corridor, including the newly restored sections of the rail trail, are a focus of OSI's Growing Greenways: West of Hudson Greenway Trails Vision Plan. The OSI-led plan presents a vision and a blueprint to connect several existing Hudson Valley trail networks, including the arterial O&W Rail Trail, to create an interconnected, multi-use trail network spanning more than 250 miles and connecting dozens of communities throughout Ulster, Sullivan, and Orange counties.

Renovations along the lengthy O&W Corridor are key to the success of the Growing Greenways initiative: Once trail improvements are completed, the fragmented former railroad corridor will be transformed into a continuous, 57-mile greenway trail running from the City of Kingston to the City of Port Jervis, forming the backbone of the Growing Greenways trail network.

In addition to the new improvements, this year OSI has notched several Growing Greenways conservation and trail improvement victories along the O&W Rail Trail, including the purchase of 2.4 miles of the O&W railbed in Wawarsing, additional trail improvements in Port Ben, and the launch of the O&W Rail Trail Corridor Study. The O&W Rail Trail Corridor Study is supported in part by a $500,000 grant from the NYS Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation through Title 9 of the Environmental Protection Act of 1993.

Ulster County Clerk Nina Postupack Announces Civil War Era Concert "Songs of the Irish Brigade" at the Matthewis Persen House Museum

Kingston, NY - Ulster County Clerk Nina Postupack is pleased to announce the Ulster County Civil War Roundtable presented "Songs of the Irish Brigade," a concert by The Veterans in a New Field, at the Matthewis Persen House. The historic house is located at 74 John Street in uptown Kingston, at the corner of John and Crown Streets.

On Saturday, June 15, they held a special performance of songs from the Irish Brigade during the Civil War and World War I. This talented band preserves and presents the cherished melodies of the Union Irish Brigade and has recently added World War I songs to their repertoire. Listeners were invited to enjoy and reflect on the sacrifices made by those who served. Get ready to hear classic tunes such as "Marching Through Georgia,' "Over There," "You're a Grand Old Flag," "The Irish Volunteer,"

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary," "Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Danny Boy," "Give My Regards to Broadway," "Goober Peas," and many more!

The Irish Brigade, consisting of mostly Irish Americans, served in the Union Army in the American Civil War. This infantry brigade became known as the "Fighting 69th" and continued in later wars. The Irish Brigade was known in part for its famous war cry, the "Faugh a Ballaugh", meaning "clear the way." Since 1907, the Fighting 69th has been a unit of the New York National Guard.

"We were thrilled to welcome The Veterans in a New Field back to the Persen House," said County Clerk Nina Postupack. "Music has been a significant part of our nation's history. Experiencing the music of our Civil War ancestors was both a memorable and entertaining event for the entire family."

For further information about the Matthewis Persen House Museum, please contact the Ulster County Clerk's Archives at (845) 340-3415 or archives@co.ulster.ny.us. You can also visit us online at https://clerk.ulstercountyny.gov/archives/persen-house or on Facebook for updates and announcements.

NICK NEEDS KIDNEY - TYPE O (IN SOME CASES TYPE A BLOOD COULD WORK)

Chronic Kidney Disease (CKD) progresses in stages and, if untreated, can lead to complete loss of kidney function. At CKD stage 5, when both kidneys fail completely, the only options for survival are dialysis or a kidney transplant. Nick is at stage 5.

If interested in donating please contact Westchester Medical Center and speak with a Living Donor Coordinator at 914.493.1990

More about our warrior Nick....

Nick was diagnosed with Tuberous Sclerosis Complex (TSC) at birth. TSC is a neurological disorder that produces seizures, tumors, and lesions that effect the organs of the body and can cause Autism. Nick has been battling with seizures his whole life from infantile spasms to adult grand-mal seizures. May 2019 we heard the worst news that Nick's function was under 10% on both kidneys. Since then Nick has had multiple surgeries so he could get the proper dialysis preformed. Nick goes in center for 4 hours 3 times a week. Not what the sweetest, kindest, 31 year old should be going through.

Nick has such a big heart and is loved by so many in our community. We all want Nick to have the best quality of life and going through dialysis does not provide that quality. We hope and pray a kidney comes to us and that Nick will be able to live a happy and healthy life doing what he loves and that is to bicycle all throughout our town making people smile. Nick is a big part of the community, he takes pride with his volunteer work with the EMS and is the Honorary member of the Monticello Fire Department.

Lets all band together for Nick and help him find a kidney so he can live life to the fullest!

Sullivan Warrior Teens Ready to Fight for a Healthier Generation

[Liberty, NY] - Close to 50 students from BOCES, Fallsburg and Monticello School Districts; and homeschool students from across the county graduated from the first class of the Sullivan Warrior Teens Program held at Bethel Woods Center for the Arts in May. Sullivan Warrior Teens, a program of Sullivan 180, is meant to arm young people with knowledge on social, physical and mental health related topics, empowering them to make healthy choices and share this information with their peers.

During the series students came together to watch and discuss films on topics of mental health, substance use disorder, physical health, nutrition, social media and health equity. The films included "Nic Sick: The Dangers of Youth Vaping", "Game Changers", "A Silent Voice", and, the culminating film, "Screenagers: Under the Influence". Students also shared a plantpowered lunch created by Chef Joel of Bethel Woods.

Amanda Langseder, Sullivan 180 Senior Director of Prevention Programming, set the tone for the series by saying, "What is really important is that you realize we are all here to learn together. Not a single one of us in this theater knows everything about health. Everyone can grow and change; and every single person here can learn a little something about how to improve the health of their mind, body and spirit."

Sullivan County youth-serving organizations, members of SALT (Sullivan Allies Leading Together) and PARFACT (Protection & Risk Factors Committee) were there to connect participating youth to community resources available to them, their peers and their families. These organizations shared prevention efforts to inspire Warrior Teens to be leaders of change in building a culture of health in their schools and communities. Damola Akinyemi, Bee Moser (Cornell Cooperative Extension), Thomas Bosket (ENGN) and Megan Robbins (Catholic Charities of Orange, Sullivan and Ulster) helped facilitate the sessions.

Sullivan Warrior Teens was supported with funding from the NYS Department of Health Bureau of Health Equity and the 2023 WSUL Heart-a-thon.

After another busy week, I wanted to provide another update on how I'm fighting for Hudson and Delaware Valley priorities:

FIGHTING FOR REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM

Last week, we saw yet again that the far-right will stop at nothing to strip away women's reproductive freedom.

In Thursday's ruling on the abortion medication Mifepristone, the Supreme Court decided that the plaintiffs in the case did not have legal standing to bring the case to court.

The court did not weigh in on the legal merits or arguments of the case and ban itself, leaving the door wide open for the far-right to continue with future court cases to ban access to Mifepristone, which the FDA ruled was safe and effective more than 20 years ago. Justice Brett Kavanaugh even outlined next steps for the far-right to continue to erode access to abortion care more effectively and Louisiana recently declared the medication as a controlled substance.

Congress must act to protect Mifepristone by passing my Protecting Reproductive Freedom Act immediately. The upcoming anniversary of the Dobbs decision is a stark reminder of their blueprint: the far-right will absolutely be back in full force, whether in the courts or Congress.

For the second year in a row, far-right Republicans also added amendments to the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA), the country's largest defense funding bill, that would strip away access to reproductive healthcare, including abortion care, from women service members.

The cruel irony is not lost on me that these are the very same politicians who, just a few days ago, were celebrating the 76th anniversary of the Women's Armed Services Integration Act and talking about their support for our women service members.

I fought in combat alongside our women service members to protect our nation's foundational freedoms. I will not let their freedom be ripped away from them here at home.

As long as these extremists continue their campaign to rip away reproductive rights, we'll continue our fight to protect them.

DIRECTLY ASSISTING OUR VETERANS, SERVICE MEMBERS, AND MILITARY FAMILIES

Our veterans, service members, and military families make huge sacrifices to protect our country and freedom - we owe them a debt that we can never repay.

A huge thank you to everyone who joined us at my Veterans and Military Families Resource Fair and to the over 35 community partners, government offices, and organizations from across the Hudson Valley who came together to deliver direct assistance for our country's heroes.

If you missed the Resource Fair, but need assistance, please reach out to my office at (845) 443-2930 or here on my website . https://patryan.house.gov/services/help-federal-agency

FIGHTING BACK AGAINST THE UNFAIR, UNIN-FORMED, AND UNACCEPTABLE CONGESTION PRICING PLAN

Since day one, I've fought alongside countless Hudson Valley families against this unfair, uninformed, and unacceptable congestion pricing plan.

I'm proud to say that with the announcement that the plan is indefinitely delayed, we've stopped congestion pricing in its tracks.

Now it's time to get to work on a plan that actually makes sense for the entire state, not just New York City, including commitments to significant service additions and meaningful discounts for public servants.

I'll continue to stand up to anyone, regardless of party, who tries to rip off hard-working Hudson Valley families.

WISHING NY-18 DADS A HAPPY FATHER'S DAY

I hope yesterday was a Happy Father's Day for all the dads across the Hudson Valley!

As a father to two young sons and member of the Congressional Dads Caucus I'm proud to fight for legislation to support Hudson Valley families - like paid family leave and the expanded child tax credit.

BRINGING MY OFFICE TO YOU

Everyone deserves the assistance they need right where they're at. My team goes that extra mile to cut through bureaucratic red tape and get Hudson Valley families the benefits they've earned with the C.A.R.E.S. Van.

If you need help navigating anything from IRS returns to Social Security, or just want to talk with my team, hope you'll join one of June's events!

HONORING AN AMERICAN HERO

Fallen Korean War soldier and Arlington High School graduate PFC Charles Johnson is an absolute American hero - allowing another day to go by without awarding him the Medal of Honor that he deserves is flat out wrong. That's why I'm calling on President Biden to immediately upgrade his Silver Star to the Medal of Honor.

On June 11, 1953, PFC Johnson and his fellow soldiers came under heavy fire while serving near the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea. PFC Johnson was severely injured but disregarded his own condition to attend to the wounds of his comrades. Surrounded and without ammunition, PFC Johnson left the relative safety of his trench that he and his group were taking cover in to find weapons and single-handedly hold off the enemy front. PFC Johnson's self-sacrificing actions allowed reinforcements to rescue his fellow soldiers and are credited with saving at least eight American lives.

His actions of profound bravery were derived from a life firmly grounded in service to his country and his Millbrook community, as well as an unwavering commitment and sense of duty to his brothers in uniform.

His life merits an elevated place in American history - for his family, for his community, and for every American who can draw inspiration from his selfless sacrifice.

WÔRKING WITH OUR LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT

Our local law enforcement officers undertake huge risks to keep our families safe around the clock. Every day, I'm working to deliver the resources they need.

It was great meeting with Orange County Sheriff Paul Arteta and Newburgh Police Chief Brandon Rola to discuss continuing to work together to protect Orange County families.

CHAG SHAVUOT SAMEACH!

Last week, we celebrated Shavuot, commemorating the receiving of the Torah at Mount Sinai.

To everyone who celebrated across the Hudson Valley, Chag Sameach!

EID MUBARAK

I want to wish everyone who celebrated Eid al-Adha this past weekend Eid Mubarak. I hope it was a blessed and peaceful day spent surrounded by the warmth of family and loved ones. (Contd. Pg. 58)

Congratulations to Amani and Amanda on your amazing achievements, graduating, and leaving a legacy of service for future Falcons! NY-18 is proud of you!

REMEMBERING THE LIVES LOST AT THE PULSE NIGHTCLUB

This past Thursday, we remembered the 49 lives were taken far too soon in the Pulse Nightclub shooting.

My message to the LGBTQ+ community is this:

You are loved.

You belong.

And I will always fight to protect your rights and freedoms as Americans.

WISHING THE ARMY A HAPPY 249TH BIRTHDAY

A huge Happy 249th Birthday to the United States Army last week!

The 5 years I served in uniform made me the person I am today. It is an honor to represent West Point and continue that service every day in Congress.

Here's to many, many more years of Go Army, Beat Navy!

PROTECTING OUR ENVIRONMENT

We recently celebrated both World Environment Day and World Ocean Day - every day, I'm fighting for the clean water, air, and soil that everyone deserves.

Governor Hochul Must Immediately Pardon President Trump

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ejkUZbeIc5k

Our justice system was founded on the principle of blind justice, yet in an attempt to silence President Trump, this core value was denied to him. I sent a letter to Governor Hochul regarding the recent verdict in the case of The People of the State of New York V Donald J. Trump, which undermined the impartiality and credibility of our justice system by convicting President Trump in an attempt to silence him. This case was based on a targeted investigation in search of crimes to convict the former President for political purposes. As a member of the New York Bar Association and the daughter of a New York State Supreme Court Justice, I am appalled by this abuse of power and the politicized, two-tiered system of justice Governor Kathy Hochul and DA Alvin Bragg have created. This verdict was an insult to our country, and it is evident that it had nothing to do with facts but was an attempt to hinder President Trump's ability to campaign freely. Governor Hochul must immediately pardon President Donald Trump and restore the integrity and faith of our legal system.

The National Defense Authorization Act is a critical piece of legislation that authorizes funding for our military critical defense programs and improves the quality of life for our servicemembers and their families. The FY25 NDAA works to enhance our deterrence capabilities, counteracts the Chinese Communist Party's malign influence, and improves the living conditions for servicemembers. Importantly, this year's NDAA reversed the Biden administration's dangerous request to halve the annual Virginia-Class Nuclear Submarine force, which would have a devastating impact on Indo-Pacific deterrence and our commitment to defense in that region through joint efforts with Australia, and the UK via the AUKUS program. Improving the lives of our servicemembers and their families, who make sacrifices every day for our country, was a focal point of this year's NDAA. This bill provides a 19.5% raise for junior enlisted servicemembers, improves on-post housing, ensures access to quality healthcare, and invests in greater access to childcare for military families. As a tenacious advocate for military priorities, I specifically advocated for initiatives that will benefit our servicemembers and their families stationed at Fort Drum, Niagara Falls Air Reserve Station, and those serving across New York's 24th Congressional District.

Importantly, this bill streamlines spending and safeguards billions of taxpayer dollars to ensure our hard-earned tax dollars are not used to enhance security and are not wasted on the Biden administration's dangerous "woke" policies. I supported multiple amendments that prohibit wasting funding on Green New Deal mandates, unnecessary Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) efforts, and sex reassignment surgeries. Funding for our armed forces must be focused on military readiness, enhancing our defense capabilities, and supporting our servicemembers' quality of life.

Included in this bill were two standalone pieces of legislation that I introduced: the FORKS Made in America Act and the Parity for Child Exploitation Offenders Act. The FORKS Made in America Act will require DOD to buy stainless steel flatware from American companies, such as Sherrill Manufacturing. The Parity for Child Exploitation Offenders Act will close loopholes that allow child predators to escape enhanced penalties for sexual crimes involving children.

Passing the NDAA is crucial to our defense and national security initiatives. I am eager to see this bill swiftly signed into law to reward our courageous members of the military who answer the call to serve our nation.

Attorney General Garland is a Dirty Cop

President Biden has admitted to mishandling classified documents, yet AG Garland is engaging in a cover-up and refusing to bring charges against him. Now, he is withholding valuable information from House Republicans, further shielding the President from accountability. This is all while he is orchestrating a witch hunt of an investigation into President Trump.

This week, I supported a resolution to hold Attorney General Garland in Contempt of Congress for his failure to comply with the House Judiciary Committee's subpoena for the audiotapes of Special Counsel Robert Hur's interviews with President Joe Biden and the transcript and audio recordings of Hur's interviews with Mark Zwonitzer, President Biden's ghostwriter. Special Counsel Hur's report detailed how President Biden knowingly and willfully removed, mishandled, and disclosed classified documents repeatedly over decades. Hur ultimately did not bring forth any charges, stating, "at trial, Mr. Biden would likely present himself to a jury, as he did during our interview of him, as a sympathetic, well-meaning elderly man with a poor memory."

This is just a part of the large scheme by the Department of Justice to interfere in the 2024 election on behalf of Joe Biden and the Democrats.

I remain dedicated to holding corrupt AG Garland accountable and ensuring the Biden Crime Family is thoroughly investigated and charged for their crimes against the American people.

My Votes Explained

Transparency in Congress and a well-informed electorate are vital to preserving our self-governing Constitutional Republic. My constituents deserve to know how their members of Congress vote, which is why I have explained every vote I have cast in Congress since I was first elected.

To read more about my votes and see the full list with explanations of all the legislation considered this week by the House, please click here.

https://tenney.house.gov/about/my-votes-explained

I voted "Yes" on H.R. 6543, the No Hidden Fees on Extra Expenses for Stays Act of 2023. H.R. 6543 prohibits unfair or misleading price advertising for places of short-term lodging and requires accurate price listings that include all mandatory and resort fees. Hidden fees drive up costs for American families that are continuing to grapple with inflation. That is why I supported this legislation to improve transparency and allow individuals and families to be fully informed about prices for hotels, resorts, or other lodging arrangements before they travel. H.R. 6543 passed the House by a vote of 384-25.

I voted "Yes" on H.R. 2964, the Wastewater Infrastructure Pollution Prevention and Environmental Safety Act. H.R. 2964 requires the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to create a standardized, uniform label for non-flushable products like cotton swabs, wet wipes, paper towels, and tissues. Many communities in Upstate New York continue to face challenges in maintaining wastewater infrastructure, and blockages from non-flushable products can wreak havoc on older plumbing and wastewater treatment equipment. (Contd. Pg. 60)

This Week with Claudia

(From Pf. 59) Simplifying labeling for non-flushable products will save taxpayers millions and prevent future problems for our community's wastewater infrastructure. H.R. 2964 passed the House by a vote of 351-56.

I voted "Yes" on H.Res. 1292, a resolution recommending that the House of Representatives find United States Attorney General Merrick B. Garland in contempt of Congress for refusal to comply with a subpoena duly issued by the Committee on the Judiciary. Attorney General (AG) Garland is a dirty cop. President Biden has admitted to mishandling classified documents, yet AG Garland is engaging in a cover-up by refusing to bring charges against President Biden. Now, he is withholding valuable information from the House Judiciary Committee, further shielding President Biden from accountability. This at the same time he is orchestrating a meritless, politically-driven investigation into President Trump. This scheme is a ploy by the Department of Justice to interfere in the 2024 election on behalf of Joe Biden and the Democrats. House Republicans are dedicated to holding corrupt AG Garland accountable and ensuring the Biden Crime Family is thoroughly investigated and charged for their crimes against the American people. H.Res. 1292 passed the House by a vote of 216-207.

I voted "Yes" on H.R. 8070, the Servicemember Quality of Life Improvement and National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2025. The National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) is a critical piece of legislation that authorizes funding for vital defense programs and improves the quality of life for our servicemembers and their families. This year's NDAA works to enhance our deterrence capabilities, counteract China's malign influence, and enhance living conditions for our servicemembers. Importantly, this year's NDAA reversed the Biden administration's dangerous request to halve the annual Virginia-class submarine purchase, which would have a devastating impact on our Indo-Pacific deterrence and our defense industrial base. Improving the lives of our servicemembers and their families, who make sacrifices every day for our country, was a focal point of this year's NDAA. This bill provides a 19.5 percent raise for junior enlisted servicemembers, improves on-post housing, ensures access to quality health care, and invests in greater access to childcare for military families. As a tenacious advocate for our military, I specifically advocated for funding initiatives that will benefit our servicemembers and their families at Fort Drum, Niagara Falls Air Reserve Station, and neighboring communities. Importantly, this bill cracks down on excessive spending and safeguards billions of taxpayer dollars to ensure our hard-earned dollars are not used to fund the Biden administration's "woke" policies. I supported multiple amendments that prohibit wasteful funding for Green New Deal mandates, unnecessary diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) efforts, and sex reassignment surgeries. Funding for our armed forces must be focused on military readiness, enhancing our defense capabilities, and supporting our servicemembers' quality of life. Included in this bill were two standalone pieces of legislation that I introduced: the FORKS Made in America Act and the Parity for Child Exploitation Offenders Act. The FORKS Made in America Act will require DOD to buy stainless steel flatware from American companies, such as manufacturers in New York. The Parity for Child Exploitation Offenders Act will close loopholes that allow child predators to escape enhanced penalties for sexual crimes involving children. Passing the NDAA is crucial to our defense and national security initiatives. I am eager to see this bill swiftly signed into law to give our brave servicemembers the resources and support they deserve. H.R. 8070 passed the House by a vote of 217-199.

I voted "Yes" on S. 138, Promoting a Resolution to the Tibet-

China Dispute Act. S. 138 requires the Special Coordinator for Tibet to actively counter China's disinformation regarding Tibet and its history. This bill also reaffirms U.S. support for the Dalai Lama and the Tibetan people and reinforces existing U.S. policy that the Tibet question must be resolved through direct negotiations between Tibet and China. S. 138 passed the House by a vote of 391-26.

Andrew Cuomo Must Be Held Accountable

New Yorkers have suffered immensely due to Governor Cuomo's negligent nursing home policies that resulted in the untimely death of 15,000 of our senior citizens. In April 2020, I raised the alarm and called for a federal investigation into Cuomo's handling of the COVID-19 crisis, where he forced COVID positive patients into nursing homes. In response, Cuomo's team concealed the true reasons behind the alarming death rates in our community to protect his image and secure a lucrative book deal. This week, disgraced Governor Cuomo testified before Congress, continuing to perpetuate lies and fail to take responsibility for his actions that caused the death of thousands. His testimony is just the first step in the fight to hold disgraced Governor Cuomo and those who aided his criminal behavior accountable. We must deliver justice to the innocent victims and their families and ensure that such a tragic failure in leadership never happens again.

My Resolution Calling for Ryan Corbett's Immediate Release Passes House of Representatives

NY-24 resident Ryan Corbett has been held without charge by the Taliban for over 600 days in a 9-by-9 foot cell in horrendous conditions, causing his health and mental well-being to deteriorate rapidly. Since hearing of his case, I have worked closely with his family, raising awareness of this innocent American's wrongful detention and calling for Ryan to be immediately released.

Earlier this year, I introduced H. Res. 965, a resolution Calling for the immediate release of Ryan Corbett, a United States citizen who the Taliban wrongfully detained on August 10, 2022, and condemning the wrongful detention of Americans by the Taliban. This week, this legislation passed the House unanimously, reaffirming Congress's commitment to securing Ryan's release and bringing him home to his loving family.

Now, it is up to President Biden to act and bring Ryan home.

Welcome to Kirsten's New York Minute! Here's what she's been up to this week:

1. Working to expand internet access

The Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) helped millions of low-income households afford high-speed internet. In May, the ACP ran out of funding, and Kirsten is fighting to renew the program.

This week, she announced her bipartisan Secure and Affordable Broadband Extension Act, legislation that would renew the ACP for the over 1.7 million New York households that relied on the program. The bill would provide $6 billion for the ACP and help ensure that high-speed internet is accessible for New Yorkers so they can work remotely, attend online classes, and access telehealth appointments. (Contd. Pg. 61)

2. Combating PFAS pollution

Kirsten has long fought to protect New York's water sources from being contaminated by dangerous PFAS chemicals - widespread contaminants found in a variety of consumer products that cause an array of health problems.

This week, she visited Rochester and Menands to call for $20 million in federal funding to help regulate industrial discharges of dangerous PFAS chemicals. The funding would be included in next year's appropriations package and provide the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) with the resources needed to address PFAS pollution at the source and help get these dangerous chemicals out of our waterways once and for all.

3. Growing the police workforce

Police departments across New York are facing unprecedented workforce shortages. Kirsten is leading legislation to expand the police workforce and improve public safety.

In Buffalo, Kirsten stood with local law enforcement officers to announce her bipartisan Providing Child Care for Police Officers Act. The bill would provide $24 million in federal funding annually for the next 5 fiscal years to expand child care services for our police officers to accommodate their nontraditional work hours and boost recruitment.

NDAA PASSES WITH SIX MOLINARO-AUTHORED BIPARTISAN MEASURES

Washington, DC - U.S. Rep. Marc Molinaro (NY-19) today announced six bipartisan measures he authored and four bipartisan measures he cosponsored were included in the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for Fiscal Year 2025.

Rep. Molinaro voted to pass the NDAA, which authorizes the budget and expenditures for the U.S. Department of Defense

(DoD) for Fiscal Year 2025. Once the House and Senate pass their versions of the bill, lawmakers will begin working to develop a compromised NDAA to be signed into law.

Rep. Molinaro said, "I'm proud to have my bipartisan measures included in the NDAA that support military families with disabilities, enhance our defense systems, and implement lifesaving medicine. This bill delivers for our national defense and ensures our servicemembers, military families, and veterans have the utmost support. I'm excited to get this bipartisan bill one step closer to the finish line and working with the Senate to continue crafting legislation that protects our nation, its national defense, and those who have courageously served to protect our freedoms."

Summaries of Molinaro's bipartisan measures included in NDAA:

Directs the Secretary of the Army to produce a report on the progress made to modernize the Army's Black Hawk Helicopters. Requires the DoD to produce an updated report on the nation's defenses against biological threats.

Directs the DoD's Chief Artificial Intelligence Officer to identify gaps in the the skills and training of the agency's current AI workforce to preserve the United States' global technological competitiveness.

Molinaro Backed Amendments in the NDAA:

Requires the Secretary of Defense to update Congress on efforts to rescue hostages in Gaza.

Authorizes the DOD and Department of Health and Human services (HHS) to address barriers to mental health care for military pilots, aviators, and air traffic controllers and identify improvements that can be made.

Requires an outline of existing tunnel networks along the Gaza-Egypt border that terrorist groups use to smuggle weapons and illicit goods.

Directs the DoD to maintain prescription drop boxes on all military bases to allow for safe disposal of unused prescription drugs, including opioids.

Other key provisions in the NDAA:

Provides our junior enlisted servicemembers with a 19.5% pay raise and supports a 4.5% pay raise for all other servicemembers.

Expands access to mental health services and healthcare for servicemembers.

Fully funds childcare assistance programs for military families.

Funds and expands programs to deter Chinese aggression.

Increases security along our southwest and maritime borders.

OVERCOMING PARTISANSHIP & GRIDLOCK, MOLINARO RANKED IN TOP FIVE FOR MOST BILLS PASSED

https://molinaro.house.gov/uploadedfiles/house-passedbills_118_20240612.pdf

Washington, DC - A year and a half into his first term, U.S. Rep. Marc Molinaro (NY-19) today announced he is in the top five for most bills passed in Congress.

According to the Congressional Research Service, Rep. Molinaro has passed five standalone bills, 37 measures as part of larger bills, and has 11 bills signed into law. This announcement comes after Rep. Molinaro was named the second most bipartisan member of

https://molinaro.house.gov/news/documentsingle.aspx?DocumentID =2130

Rep. Molinaro said, "It's no secret that Washington has a bad reputation, and rightfully so. So, when I came to Congress, I said I would do things differently and work with anyone who is honest and earnest about solving problems Upstate New Yorkers face. To be in the top five for most bills passed in Congress means I'm overcoming the partisanship and gridlock and delivering on my promise."

MOLINARO'S BILL SUPPORTING EMPLOYEES & ENTREPRENEURS WITH DISABILITIES PASSES HOUSE WITH BIPARTISAN SUPPORT

Washington, DC - U.S. Rep. Marc Molinaro (R-NY-19) today announced the Think DIFFERENTLY About Disability Employment Act passed the House of Representatives with bipartisan support. He introduced this bill alongside U.S. Rep. Chris Pappas (D-NH-1). This is Rep. Molinaro's 40th bipartisan measure to pass the House. He has 11 bipartisan measures signed into law.

The bipartisan bill creates a partnership between the National Council on Disability and the Small Business Administration (SBA) to help small businesses address accessibility issues for employees with disabilities, encourage the hiring of those in the disability community, and help entrepreneurs with disabilities succeed. This builds off Rep. Molinaro's nationally recognized 'Think DIFFERENTLY' initiative, which breaks down barriers and creates opportunities for the disability community.

Rep. Molinaro said, "Every person of every ability deserves opportunities to succeed and pursue their passions. I'm proud to have my Think DIFFERENTLY About Disability Employment Act pass the House with strong bipartisan support. My bill ensures those with physical, intellectual and developmental disabilities have the support and resources they need to become an entrepreneur or work for a small business."

Since coming to Congress, Rep. Molinaro has built off his 'Think DIFFERENTLY initiative' by crafting a package of bipartisan legislation. The Think DIFFERENTLY About Disability Employment was a part of his Think DIFFERENTLY legislative package.

WHY I VOTED FOR THE 2024 FARM BILL

Oneonta, NY - U.S. Rep. Marc Molinaro (NY-19) penned an op-ed published in The Daily Star outlining Upstate New York priorities included in the 2024 Farm Bill that delivers relief for farmers and working families.

The Daily Star

Why I voted for the 2024 Farm Bill

By Congressman Marc Molinaro (NY-19):

https://www.thedailystar.com/opinion/columns/congressman-why-i-voted-for-the-2024-farm-bill/article_7e56393a-2367-11ef-8713-871c515dc29f.html

When I ran for Congress, I promised to fight for the families and farmers who call Upstate New York home. Over the past year and a half, I've held 11 town hall meetings, three Farm Bill listening sessions, and met with hundreds of Upstate New Yorkers to understand their struggles and aspirations.

The 2024 Farm Bill, which I proudly supported in the House Agriculture Committee, is a culmination of these efforts. This bill is not just a legislative package; it's a lifeline for our community that delivers real relief to those who need it most and includes 10 bipartisan measures that I wrote to solve problems Upstate New Yorkers brought to me. Here's how.

Strengthening Nutrition Assistance For Working Families

Growing up on food stamps, I understand firsthand the importance of robust nutrition assistance programs. These programs were a critical safety net for my family, helping us climb out of poverty. Today, many families in Upstate New York face similar challenges, exacerbated by rising food costs.

This Farm Bill provides much-needed relief to working families in Upstate New York by bolstering nutrition assistance programs and addressing food insecurity head-on. It's a comprehensive approach designed to ensure that no one in our community goes hungry.

Central to these efforts is the expansion of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), ensuring that benefits continue to grow to keep pace with inflation. Additionally, it allows recipients to purchase more fruits and vegetables and extends SNAP benefits to working individuals with disabilities aged 17 to 21, ensuring families with disabilities don't inadvertently disqualify themselves from nutrition assistance programs.

Beyond SNAP enhancements, the Farm Bill allocates additional funding to food banks and includes legislation I championed to ensure seniors in rural areas, those with disabilities, and individuals facing mobility challenges have access to home delivery services from food banks. By prioritizing these measures, the Farm Bill offers tangible relief to working families in Upstate New York.

Supporting Farmers & Strengthening Agriculture

Amidst mounting pressures on farmers, the 2024 Farm Bill provides genuine relief, giving our agricultural industry the breathing space it sorely needs. Tailored to address the specific challenges confronting our farming community, this bill encompasses a suite of measures designed to foster sustainability and growth.

Of note, the bill includes bipartisan measures I wrote and fought to include that strengthen the Dairy Margin Coverage safety net program, increase funding to support farm families with disabilities, and deliver more support to organic farmers and those producing specialty crops like apples, Christmas trees, and grapes.

To help save farmers money, I also pushed for inclusion of bills I authored to address local issues like making efficient pump & irrigation systems more accessible to farmers, authorizing low-interest loans to businesses investing in food supply chain operations, and a measure that helps rural communities access federal funding for infrastructure that prevents costly flooding.

Taken together, these initiatives implement a holistic approach to support farmers and fortify agriculture in Upstate New York. By tackling pressing challenges head-on, the 2024 Farm Bill lays the groundwork for a resilient and prosperous agricultural sector, one that can sustain itself and allow family farming to live on.

A Commitment to Upstate New York

I asked to serve on the House Agriculture Committee because I knew the critical role the Farm Bill plays in shaping agricultural and food policy. This bill is a big deal for Upstate New York, delivering real relief to our farmers and working families. By addressing the pressing issues of rising costs, food insecurity, and agricultural stability, the 2024 Farm Bill offers a comprehensive solution tailored to the needs of our community.

My vote for this bill was a vote for the hardworking families and farmers of Upstate New York. I am committed to continuing to listen, learn, and advocate for policies that support our community's well-being and prosperity. This Farm Bill is a significant step in that ongoing journey.

Throughout the first film in the original series, Jim Levenstein (Jason Biggs) tries to develop a relationship with his school classmate Nadia (Shannon Elizabeth). Jim and three of his best friends Kevin Myers (Thomas Ian Nicholas), Paul Finch (Eddie Kaye Thomas), and Chris Ostreicher (Chris Klein) make a pact to lose their virginity before their high school graduation.

Steve Stifler (Seann William Scott), the obnoxious jock of the group, provides them with unorthodox advice while hosting wild parties in the meantime. In the second film, the five boys host a summer party and Jim becomes interested in his friend, Michelle Flaherty (Alyson Hannigan). In the third film, Jim and Michelle plan to marry, although the forced invitation of Stifler could ruin everything. In the fourth film, the gang gets back together in anticipation of their thirteenth high school reunion.
